Ford gets promise of cooperation

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford has won assurance from Senate majority leader Mike Mansfield that the heavily Democratic new Congress will cooperate with him in the fight on inflation and recession.

"There's no such thing as a veto proof Congress," the Montana senator said. "That is an impossibility. You have to do these things cooperatively."

He met with Ford for 45 minutes Wednesday to discuss plans for the congressional lame duck session which opens Nov. 18.

Asked whether the huge Democratic majorities would undercut Ford's programs, Mansfield said, "This will not be a Congress that will attempt to demean the President."

The President will spend much of this week making key budget decisions before his trip to the Far East.

He is preparing a special message to Congress urging passage during the current Congress of some 40 bills, including appropriations, energy and his economic proposals.

Mansfield said he told Ford "We would do our best to fight inflation and recession."

He made clear, however, that he had his own legislative list and that he still favors wage and price controls. The President's plans rely heavily on voluntary efforts.

The meeting with Ford began with Mansfield saying: "I would hope, Mr. President, that now that the election is over, we will be able to get together to work cooperatively.

"I know you want to, I know the Senate wants to, and I feel sure the House wants to," Mansfield said.

"Let me assure you that will be the case," Ford replied.

Ford, who had angered Democrats during the campaigns by saying they were the "big spenders" and had put peace in jeopardy, told Mansfield he thought the general tone of the campaign was not too acrimonious compared with others.

Mansfield agreed, saying, "I've seen much worse."

Ford's aides said the President does not believe the elections can be interpreted as a personal defeat, although he campaigned for many candidates who lost.

But Press Secretary Ron Nessen admitted "it wasn't a very good day for Republicans and it wasn't a very good day for the Republicans he campaigned for."

Won't be world's meal ticket anymore

U.S. farmers rap food parley

ROME (UPI) — Farmers from the rich crop lands of the U.S. Midwest told the global conference on food today that the United States cannot continue to pay the world's meal ticket.

The presidents of the Illinois and Iowa Farm Bureaus, the two largest food exporting states, criticized the conference called by Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger as just a lot of "fine words and brave talk."

"This conference doesn't produce one iota of food," said Harold B. Steele of the Illinois Farm Bureau.

And "while we talk about the need for increased production in both developing and developed nations, we must talk frankly about who is going to pay for it," said J. Merrill Anderson of the Iowa bureau.

The American farmer cannot continue to produce food if his expenses outrun his income, Steele said.

"We are not stating that we expect starving people to pay for food before they are fed," he said, "but we are saying that neither farmers nor American taxpayers should be expected to carry the burden alone."

Another Illinois farmer, Dale Butz, said he found few nations at the conference willing to make the sacrifices necessary to alleviate the world food crisis.

"With all the fine words and brave talk going on around here in the end it will be the American taxpayer who pays for it," Butz said.

Earlier today the United States refused to follow Canada's example and make a specific pledge of food for a proposed world stockpile to combat global starvation.

Cuba issued a scathing attack on the United States, saying America was using the hungry and starving in the world as pawns to force down oil prices.

Carlo Rafael Rodriguez, Cuba's vice premier, told the 1,000 delegates from more than 100 countries that the "international financial bankruptcy of capitalist countries is the fault of stubborn policies of the United States."

"In the ruling circles in the United States there is talk of negotiating the exportation of food to bend the oil producing countries," Rodriguez said. "Cuba knows well these imperialist methods. They also tried to bring Cuba to its knees with its economic blockade."

Israel presented itself as an example to developing nations on how to build food production and offered its help to other nations.

The Canadians became the first major food producing nation to pledge a definite quantity of grain to a planned stockpile to help developing nations avert mass famine.

Agriculture Secretary Earl L. Butz, who heads the American delegation to the conference, refused to make any specific commitments and stressed America's view that each nation must control its own food reserves.

He said the creation of large reserves from the world's current short food supplies "would call for less consumption this year, higher food prices and more inflation."

"The best assurance of food security is increased production," Butz said. "We cannot conjure a reserve out of something we don't have."

The U.N. Food and Agriculture Organization has set a minimum target of 100 million tons of grain a year for the emergency food stockpile.

SHORTAGE OF SUGAR?

While British housewives are finding sugar in short supply at the market, a 17,000-ton mountain of the sweet stuff lies untouched at the Tate and Lyle Refinery near London. Workers have imposed a two-week ban on sugar leaving the plant because they fear the bigger imports of European sugar under a new Common Market deal threatens some 9,000 jobs in Great Britain.

Man shoots at his wife, others in parking lot, then turns gun on self

A 33-year-old man, who scattered homeward-bound Brockway Glass Co. employes Wednesday when he unsuccessfully tried to shoot his wife on the company parking lot, shot himself moments before officers arrived, Pomona police reported.

Larry Earl Coleman, 2958 Gramercy Place, Pomona, was reported in serious but stable condition today in Pomona Valley Community Hospital's intensive care unit. He was under treatment for a bullet wound in the stomach.

The intended victim, Mrs. Barbara K. Coleman, 26, of San Dimas, later told police that her estranged husband had been receiving psychiatric care. She said that they had been separated for 10 weeks, that they were in the process of obtaining a divorce and that Coleman had made telephone threats on her life if she didn't return.

Coleman was not placed under arrest because of his medical condition and further investigation was planned.

Police gave this account:

When Mrs. Coleman opened the door to her car, her husband rose up from the back seat, pointed a revolver at her and ordered her inside. Instead, she fled and Coleman ran after her, firing two shots.

One of the bullets broke a window in the company office as an employe, Josephine I. Trabor, San Dimas, sat at her desk. She looked outside and saw employes lying on the ground. Then Mrs. Coleman ran into the office. At that point, Mrs. Trabor called police.

Another employe, Patricia Ann Long, Pomona, was on the parking lot and saw Coleman chasing Mrs. Coleman with a gun in his hand. She heard the shots and said Coleman then pointed the weapon in her direction and fired one round. She fell to the ground, but was not hit. She said Coleman reloaded the weapon and walked away.

Two other employes planned to tackle Coleman, but changed their minds when he pointed the gun at them. They were William R. Stahl and Theodore R. Trockel, both of Pomona.

They said they saw Coleman walk to his wife's car, fire a shot into the radiator and get inside, sitting in the passenger seat.

Next they heard a muffled gunshot.

Police arrived and found Coleman sitting in the car, a gunshot wound in his stomach and a .38-caliber revolver on the floorboards.

Says '55' limit has saved 1,000 in state

SACRAMENTO, Calif. (UPI) — The 55 m.p.h. speed limit has saved nearly 1,000 lives on California highways this year, a state official said Wednesday.

"Despite many violations of the speed limit, the new law has slowed down traffic appreciably," said Highway Patrol Commissioner Dan Lanza.

He said statistics showed 906 fewer traffic deaths during the first 10 months of the year.

Revenues for the latest quarter totaled $150.57 million, up from $125.77 million.

Father, daughter dead

Family elects to starve in parked van, rather than beg as 'matter of pride'

MAYHILL, N.M. (UPI) — Several times last weekend rural residents saw boys, a girl and adults walking near a parked van or peering from its windows beside a busy highway. But no one stopped and the family made no effort to communicate with strangers.

Early Wednesday rancher Edmund Runyan saw one of the children staring at him from inside the van and decided to investigate.

"I thought maybe the parents had gone off and left the children alone," Runyan said. "I stopped and opened the back door of the van.

"I saw the woman lying there with her three boys," he said. "I asked her if she was having trouble and she told me her husband and daughter were dead in the front seat."

At the scene authorities found the father, William T. Orr, 48, and the couple's 13-year-old daughter, Annette, dead, probably since Sunday.

The mother, Lillian, 44, and the three boys, William Jr., 12, Joseph, 11, and Gregory, 7, were rushed to a hospital in Alamogordo. Spokesmen said all four were so weak they could hardly speak but were expected to survive.

"There is no real way of knowing how long they had gone without food until we can talk to the mother," said medical examiner Lawrence J. Moon. "They were undernourished and suffering from malnutrition but not to the point of death."

He said Orr and his daughter died of carbon monoxide poisoning from an open charcoal grill in the van.

William Jr.'s diary, found inside the van, indicated the family had run out of money and not eaten for several days.

"The diary had an entry dated Oct. 31 which said they had eaten two watermelons the day before and planned to eat their last one that day," said Otero County District Attorney Norman Bloom.

"The only other reference to food was a hamburger the little girl had eaten."

Bloom, who plans to question the mother when she recovers, said he believed the family was too proud to seek help.

"There was an apple orchard just across a fence and a house within 150 yards," Bloom said.

"But I think they refused to beg as a matter of pride. They might have accepted some help if it had been offered, but they weren't going to go begging for it."

Bloom said the family apparently was traveling across country when it ran out of food and gasoline on the southern New Mexico highway.

In Pennsylvania, relatives of the Orrs said the family had disappeared about a year ago, leaving their home intact with food and clothing.

Bloom said the family's van held a number of religious signs. One, penciled in red ink, stated they were out of food, money and gasoline.

"But it was written in a way that did not reflect begging," said Bloom. "They apparently made up their minds to die rather than beg."

Another sign, also in red, said: "You like your beliefs to be respected, so please respect ours."

Coal negotiators meet again in hopes of averting strike

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Negotiators for the coal industry and the nation's 120,000 miners met again today in hopes of avoiding a lengthy strike that would touch off serious energy shortages.

Both sides have said tentative settlement on a new contract is possible this weekend. But the probability of at least a short work stoppage is almost a certainty.

Thirteen coal state governors had planned to meet with administration officials today to discuss how to deal with an extended coal strike. The meeting was postponed and no date for a new meeting was announced.

"There just didn't seem to be a need to ask the governors to come into Washington to provide them information they were already receiving at a lower level," said Interior Department spokesman William Rhatigan.

A spokesman in the office of Frank Zarb, executive director of Rogers C. B. Morton's Energy Council, said that the talks were progressing so the meeting was called off. The spokesman said the situation would be reassessed Friday and "if necessary, they will set it up next week."

"We're making pretty good progress," said Arnold Miller, head of the United Mine Workers of America.

"We had an excellent meeting," Guy Farmer, chief counsel for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, said Wednesday.

A strike is considered unavoidable because the UMW has a "no contract, no work" provision in its constitution and a ratification process that union officials say will take 10 days.

Under Miller's leadership the rank and file, for the first time, will vote to accept or reject the pact.

Farmer said earlier in the week the company side's offer "has not been exceeded in any negotiations in any major industry," and the union demands were "unprecedented."

Asked if the two sides might settle by Saturday, Farmer said "that would be our target."

Stores short of sugar, grits and cornstarch

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Sugar is being rationed and corn meal, hominy grits and cornstarch are being shuffled around to various stores by a major Southern California supermarket chain in the wake of real or imagined shortages.

"For the first time since I have been with Ralph's (Grocery Company), we are short of corn meal and hominy grits," said David Doten, vice president in charge of marketing.

Doten blamed the corn shortage on weather-damaged crops. He said corn products such as corn meal and hominy grits are being shuffled to chain stores in the central downtown area "where they are a staple," and so there may be shortages in outlying areas.

Cornstarch is also scarce.

"It's dying out," Doten said. "Instead of putting the corn in cornstarch, they are putting it in cans (for food)."

Sugar purchases have been limited to one 5 pound bag per customer after a report of soaring world prices caused a run on the chain's supplies.

Doten said Ralph's current retail sugar prices are lower than the new wholesale price, and as of Wednesday, the chain was selling it for less than it cost to restock.

Doten said Ralph's warehouses have about an eight-week supply of sugar purchased at the old wholesale price of $2.20 per five-pound sack, which wholesales today for $2.58.

Raw sugar prices, which have skyrocketed by more than 400 per cent in a year, went up again this week following unconfirmed reports that the Soviet Union had contracted to buy half a million tons on commodities markets.

In other food developments, executives of Ralph's and Thriftimart, two state legislators and consumer group representatives continued to call for the suspension of minimum prices on milk at the retail and wholesale levels.

State Sen. David A. Roberti, D-Los Angeles, said that because of the importance of milk in the human diet, it is unreasonable to keep the price of milk artificially high while other foods are often sold at a loss to draw customers into the market."

Assemblyman Joseph B. Montoya, D-La Puente, said if state milk controls were suspended, consumers in Southern California could save up to $42 million in milk purchases.

Victories give Democrats powerful Assembly grip

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — When the legislature convenes its new session Dec. 2, Democrats will have full control of the state Assembly and a strong majority in the Senate.

Democrats captured 72 of 100 seats up for election Tuesday.

For the first time since 1883, they have gained a two-thirds majority in the Assembly. The 55 Democratic seats are one more than needed to pass spending and tax bills, and override gubernatorial vetoes. All 80 Assembly seats were up for election.

It was a net gain of six Democratic Assembly seats.

Assembly Speaker Leo T. McCarthy, D-San Francisco, said he was "elated" at the Democratic victories.

After a hard-fought battle this year to win his powerful post, the San Francisco lawmaker said in an interview he believed the members of the Assembly would once again choose him their speaker.

"Looking over the membership I am quite confident I will be elected speaker," McCarthy said.

Reapportionment of legislative districts by the state Supreme Court this year was partly responsible for the widespread changes, and also resulted in two unusual races where incumbents were pitted against one another.

In one, freshman Republican Assemblyman Robert McLennan of Downey defeated 12-year veteran Democrat Joe A. Gonsalves of Cerritos. McLennan began the drive to repeal the early legislative pension "bonuses."

The other race saw Assemblywoman Pauline Davis, D-Portola, a 22-year veteran, outdistance Republican Ray E. Johnson of Chico, another legislative long-timer.

Other races in which incumbents met defeat were:

— Conservative Republican Sen. Clark L. Bradley of San Jose was soundly defeated by Saratoga Mayor Jerome A. Smith, a Democrat.

—Sen. W. Craig Biddle, R-Riverside, was edged by Democrat Robert B. Presley, Riverside County undersheriff.

—Assemblyman Raymond T. Seeley, R-Blythe, was beaten by Democratic businessman Tom Suitt of Indian Wells.

— Republican Assemblyman Doug Carter of Stockton was trounced by Mokelumne Hill rancher John Garamendi, a Republican.

— Freshman Assemblyman Ray Gonzales, a Bakersfield Democrat, was outdistanced by Republican William M. Thomas, a college educator also from Bakersfield.

Strategic inroads in the mostly white legislature were made by ethnic minorities. Nate Holden of Los Angeles became the second black in history elected to the Senate, and Los Angeles Assemblyman Alex Garcia moved up to the Senate. Both are Democrats.

Women held onto two seats in the legislature with the election of Mrs. Davis and Democrat Leona H. Egland of San Jose to an Assembly seat.

Two former lawmakers regained office, Democrat Tom Bane of Van Nuys and Republican William Campbell of Hacienda Heights.

Valley driver killed in construction area crash

Mary Ruth Heyer, 42, 10210 Base Line Road, Alta Loma, was killed Wednesday in an automobile accident on Base Line Road in the Day Creek construction area in Alta Loma.

Highway patrolmen said she was eastbound and her car apparently failed to stop for a red light, ran into the intersection and collided broadside with a truck-trailer combination loaded with dirt.

She was pronounced dead on arrival at the San Antonio Community Hospital in Upland.

Mrs. Heyer was born on March 16, 1932, in Ranger, Tex. She was a 1950 graduate of Pomona High School and was a student at San Bernardino Valley Junior College. She was en route to the college at the time of the accident.

Mrs. Heyer is survived by a son, Mark S. Cuper of San Diego; one daughter, Kathryn Lynn Cuper of San Diego; her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. K. Niver of Alta Loma; and one brother, Key Niver of Palm Springs.

Visitation will be Sunday from 4 to 9 p.m. at the Stone Funeral Home in Upland. Services will be held Monday at 2 p.m. in the Stone Funeral Home with the Rev. J. Keith Whitford, pastor of Alta Loma Community Church, officiating. Burial will be in Bellevue Cemetery, Ontario.

Four inmates escape from camp; 2 caught hitchhiking

Local law enforcement agencies this morning are searching for two of four inmates who escaped from Camp Prado Conservation Center in Chino Wednesday.

The two are Angel Barragan, 26, described as a Caucasian with an olive complexion, 5 feet 6, 150 pounds of medium build; and William Campos, 42, a Caucasian of olive complexion, 5 feet 9, 165 pounds of medium build.

According to camp officials Barragan, from San Diego, was serving a prison sentence for illegal sale of narcotics and Campos, of Los Angeles, was serving a term for armed robbery.

Officials said Campos, Barragan and two other inmates, Richard Cordova and Manuel Gonzales, escaped from the minimum security conservation camp together by climing two security fences and walking into the fields across Edison Street. Chino police arrested Cordova and Gonzales, still wearing their prison blues, while they were attempting to hitchhike a ride at Central Avenue and the Pomona Freeway. Campos and Barragan were not located.

Camp officials said this morning that it was unusual for four inmates to escape at the same time as the camp is considered an honor camp and the inmates work on city, county and state road and conservation projects with minimal supervision.

City okays selling parking permits for downtown lots

The Claremont City Council Wednesday night approved the Vehicle Parking District board's recommendation that spaces in the Village business district parking lots be sold for $10 for unlimited use to July 1, and that the police enforce the two-hour parking limit on Village streets.

Board Chairman Ray Fowler asked that sale of stickers allowing unlimited parking in lots be done as soon as possible, but in any event before Christmas.

Village merchants are concerned that Christmas shoppers will not be able to find sufficient parking on the streets.

He asked that the Bank of America lot leased to the city east of Yale Avenue be included in the parking plan if it can be worked out legally.

"The stickers would be an ideal method to deal with the situation as it now stands, and to get store employes' cars off the street," Fowler said.

Fowler explained that 83 spaces are available for the seven-month lease. "We realize this is an urgency matter," he said.

Councilman Gene Block suggested that the city try the sticker sale until next July to see how it works out.

Fowler reported that 26 Village businessmen at a special meeting Wednesday night wholeheartedly supported the proposal.

600 homeowners object

Apartment zoning sparks outburst

San Dimas City Council Monday night will have to deal with a problem brought up by a group of angry homeowners in the western portion of the city who oppose the city's general plan.

About 15 residents attended this week's Planning Commission meeting to object to three city-initiated zone changes that would permit apartment development on Arrow Highway. Protestors presented a petition signed by more than 600 residents of the area who disagreed the zone changes.

The case involves about 40 acres of property zoned commercial on both sides of Arrow Highway between Lone Hill and Valley Center avenues.

Zone changes would alter property to multiple family development as suggested in the general plan.

Under state law, the city has the responsibility to initiate zone changes to comply with the general plan.

But residents told commissioners that they weren't notified of the general plan hearings and weren't aware that the area's zoning designation would be changed from commercial to multiple family use.

Because of resident objections, commissioners decided to refer the matter to City Council Monday night with the recommendation that the General Plan Update Committee take another look at the multiple family designation.

City Council can either accept the recommendation and send the matter to the update committee, or reject the recommendation and send the matter back to the commission for action.

The commission held over the public hearing on the zone changes until February.

Planning Commission Chairman Gerald Klein told protesting residents that the city sent out notices to all home owners informing them of general plan hearings. Residents at that time had the opportunity to protest proposed zoning designations. The City Council can make three amendments to the general plan per year.

Mick Luke spoke at the hearing representing Lone Hill Homeowners Association. He said apartments in the area would crowd schools, lower property values and cause an increase in crime in the community.

George Dunning, owner of property designated as a regional shopping center site at Lone Hill Avenue and Arrow Highway, objected to zone changes. He said the area should remain commercial because of plans for the adjacent regional center.

Ex-con slayer gets 5-year minimum via plea bargaining

John Richard Hanson, 26, of 9474 Palo Alto Ave., Cucamonga, an ex-convict who pleaded guilty to fatally shooting an Upland man, has been sentenced to at least five years in state prison by West Valley Superior Court Judge Clifton L. Allen.

On Oct. 31 Hanson pleaded guilty in West Valley Municipal Court to charges of possession of a firearm by an ex-felon and voluntary manslaughter in the September shooting death of Anthony Torrez, 26, of 940 San Bernardino Road, in Upland.

Hanson originally was charged with first degree murder in the case but pleaded guilty to reduced charges.

Hanson admitted to the court that in September he borrowed a .38-caliber revolver from his brother, went over to Torrez' home and shot the victim twice in the chest. Torrez died en route to the hospital.

Sheriff's investigators said Hanson became angry at Torrez after they had an altercation at Torrez' home over self-defense tactics.

Crippled voter's purse snatched

Two youths, 16 or 17, are being sought by West End sheriff's deputies this morning after they grabbed a purse from a 77-year-old Alta Loma woman sitting in a wheelchair as she was waiting to vote on Tuesday evening.

The purse snatch was reported about 5 p.m. Tuesday by voters at the Alta Loma Elementary School, 7085 Amathyst St., in Alta Loma.

According to witnesses the two youths grabbed the purse of Mrs. Dorothy Bardon, 77, of 10350 Base Line Ave. Mrs. Bardon was sitting in her wheelchair when the youths pulled the purse from her arm. The purse contained a small amount of cash and Mrs. Bardon's identification.

Traffic mistake costly; man arrested as robbery suspect

A young Pomona man was arrested early today in connection with a Pomona market robbery which occurred a few minutes earlier, police reported.

Salvador Avalos, 19, was booked on suspicion of robbery in the holdup of the 7-Eleven Food Store at 1001 E. Grand Ave. a few minutes after a lone gunman robbed clerk Robert J. McKnight there shortly after 1 a.m.

Officers Larry Kidney and Dale LaFleur said they followed Avalos' car after seeing him run a stop sign at Ninth and Reservoir streets. Then they heard a broadcast description of the car used in the holdup and noted it was similar to the car they were following.

They reported that Avalos next drove through an apartment complex in the 1000 block of S. Reservoir Street and sped off when they attempted to stop him. At Reservoir Street and Walnut Avenue Avalos tried to make a high-speed turn and collided with their radio car, Kidney reported. He was arrested there.

The officers reported finding a paper sack containing money in the car, but they found no revolver.

No one was hurt in the collision.

. . . And now back to the nation's economic ills

Thousands more workers were given pink slips and sugar prices threatened to go even higher today in the aftermath of an election that both parties said demonstated unrest over crippling prices and high unemployment.

At the White House Wednesday, President Ford and Senate Democratic majority leader Mike Mansfield met following the sweeping Democrat gains and promised mutual cooperation to try to solve the nation's economic ills.

But Treasury Secretary William Simon said in Chicago the large Democratic gains would not force the administration to change it's basic economic policy of resisting wage and price controls and advocating a 5 per cent tax surcharge.

"I will never give in to wage and price controls," Simon told a news conference.

Simon said the major economic problem still is inflation and not recession, though he conceded "the current economic malaise will eventually be recorded as a recession."

The new layoffs were announced in the auto and appliance industries, both hard hit by the economic slowdown.

Sugar prices on world markets rose to new highs Wednesday and threatened to go even higher today following the Phillipine government's decision to suspend exporting and trading in raw sugar cane because of possible crop damage from storms. The Phillipines is a major supplier sugar. Poland Wednesday suspended sugar exports.

Sugar prices in U.S. supermarkets have increased 300 per cent in a year and are expected to go even higher when the world market price filters down to the consumer level.

General Electric said it was temporarily laying off 11,200 workers at a heavy appliance plant in Louisville Ky., and Chrysler Corp. said it was discharging indefinitely 7,000 workers at four plants.

GE blamed the layoffs on slumping sales caused by the slowdown in housing construction. Chrysler said a poor sales performance of new 1975 cars was responsible for its new round of layoffs.

There were new warnings that thousands would be thrown out of work if a national coal strike materializes Nov. 12.

In Birmingham, Ala., a spokesman for U.S. Steel Corp. said a strike would prompt cutbacks in production and could put as many as 5,000 persons out of work at a local steelmaking plant.

The government estimates a lengthy strike would idle 600,000 to 1 million workers nationally.

Gov. Arch Moore of West Virginia, a major coal-producing state, said a strike would cost the state $3 million a week in lost revenues.

Negotiations between the United Mine Workers, representing 120,000 miners, and the coal owners resumed in Washington Wednesday with the threatened strike only five days away.

Union officials doubted a settlement could be reached in time to avert a strike.

Leaders of both parties said the results of Tuesday's election reflected strong voter dissatisfaction with the state of the economy, as well as with Watergate.

Sen. Lloyd M. Bentsen Jr., an unannounced contender for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination and a spokesman for Democrats on economic issues, called the results a repudiation of the Ford administration's tight money policy.

He proposed loosening up money to encourage growth in industries currently depressed, such as housing.

Bolivian revolt crushed, leaders say

LA PAZ, Bolivia (UPI) — Radio stations broadcasting in Santa Cruz in southeastern Bolivia announced today that rebel forces in full scale revolt against the military government of President Hugo Banzer were in control of the city.

Four hours later, the Bolivian joint chiefs of staff declared that the government was in control of the situation. The revolt, led by dissident members of the two major political parties and small groups of a rebel regiment quartered in Santa cruz, failed to gain support and were crushed, the government said.

Radio stations in Santa Cruz continued broadcasting throughout the morning, saying the rebels had control of the radio stations and principal public buildings of the city including the police station.

The rebel broadcasts monitored in La Paz, said that the leaders of the rebellion were Carlos Valverde, a former Banzer cabinet minister, and retired Gen. Julio Prado. Prado is the father of Maj. Gary Prado, who led an abortive coup against Banzer in La Paz June 5. The younger Prado headed the military unit which captured and killed the guerrilla leader Ernesto "Che" Guivera, in 1967.

After issuing the joint government communique in La Paz, however, a government spokesman said there was another uprising in the town of Montero, 30 miles north of Santa Cruz.

He said that rebellion also was quelled.

Fragmentary details became available through pickups by La Paz radio stations of clandestine broadcasts from Santa Cruz before the government imposed news censorship.

The Nueva America station here said it picked up first news of the revolt at 6:30 a.m.

The Nueva America said Banzer quickly left his home first for the government palace, later for the Miraflores army headquarters in the capital, presumably to coordinate action against the rebels.

Another La Paz station, radio Panamericana, which also rebroadcast the clandestine pickup, went off the air, probably on government censorship orders.

There was no indication of the strength of the revolt and life in La Paz appeared normal.

The clandestine broadcasts said the revolt is backed by supporters of former president Victor Paz Estensoro, leader of the Nationalist Revolutionary movement.

Texas ranchers dramatize point

Betty Ford gets fatted calf in meat protest

SEGUIN, Tex. (UPI) — First Lady Betty Ford is going to receive a fatted calf from Texas ranchers who want her to know that beef is a bargain when middlemen costs are eliminated.

"Since you are first lady of the United States, we must assume also that you are the first housewife," a letter accompanying the processed meat said.

"For this reason, we would like to tell you just exactly how little this meat cost us. This calf weighed 465 pounds and cost 27 ¼ cents per pound for a total of $126.71.

"The processing of this calf cost $38.28 and the carcass weighed 261 pounds. Adding these expenses together, this meat cost 63.2 cents per pound after it had been packed and ready for your freezer.

"We realize that this is a great deal cheaper than offered in the super markets in this area, and we are sure in your area as well," the ranchers told Mrs. Ford to emphasize how much profit middlemen make from ranch to market counter.

"The ranchers who grew this beef are rapidly going broke. They work long and hard hours, use tremendous amounts of capital and not only are they not making a profit, but they are losing money every day," the letter said.

"These are the facts that we would like to convey to every housewife in the U. S. Their families deserve good beef, and we like to produce it for them, but if something is not done soon, we will be out of business."

What next for mass transit?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Government proponents of mass transit were trying to determine today what they can salvage from the voter rejection of Prop. A., the transit tax initiative.

"We're still committed to improving public transportation," said Mayor Tom Bradley, one of the strongest supporters of a mass transit system. "The need remains."

There were calls for a restructuring of the Southern California Rapid Transit District, and hints that RTD General Manager Jack Gilstrap might be fired.

More than 53 per cent of the Los Angeles County voters rejected a ballot initiative to raise the sales tax from six to seven per cent to finance purchase of 1,000 new buses and the start of a 145-mile fixed guideway system.

A similiar proposition in Orange county was rejected by more than 62 per cent of the voters.

Thomas G. Neusom, president of the RTD board of directors, said the vote against the mass transit proposal was not really a vote against mass transit, but against heavier taxation.

"It appears ... that voter resistance to further taxing themselves in these inflationary times was a major factor," Neusom said.

County Supervisor Pete Scharbarum said the RTD's 11-member board should consider whether to retain Gilstrap and some of his staff.

"There has been almost tunnel vision on a fixed guideway system," Schabarum said.

The RTD has already spent $1.2 million planning the system the voters rejected, and $826,000 in campaign advertising.

Board Chairman Kenneth Hahn said he did not think it right "to make Gilstrap the scapegoat" but that the RTD's organizational setup should be improved, suggesting the Gov. Elect Edmund G.Brown Jr. make that a top priority.

Bradley, who made mass transit an important part of his campaign for mayor and who stumped tirelessly for Prop. A, said he was "terribly disappointed" at its failure.

It was the second time in six years that voters turned thumbs down on efforts by government officials to get them to approve higher taxes for a transit system, and use public transportation instead of private autos.

Won't ask recount, says Veysey aide

A staff member in the office of Congressman Victor Veysey said today that there are no plans to ask for a recount of Tuesday's vote that sent Veysey down to defeat by a scant 600 votes out of a total of 120,000 votes cast.

Veysey was defeated in his bid for reelection to the Congress by West Covina Councilman Jim Lloyd, who becomes the first representative of the new 35th Congressional District.

Lloyd received 60,709 votes to Veysey's 60,102.

Some thoughts on the election

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A major question: Do the Democratic gains point to a trend or is it a one-time thing.

There is a clear Watergate impact. The voters punished Republicans who stayed with Richard Nixon long after the people decided he had done wrong.

Numerous examples can be given: Landgrebe of Indiana, who said he'd have to be carried out of the House and shot before he would desert Nixon; Sandman, Maraziti and Mayne of the House Impeachment Committee.

Watergate has given Democrats an opportunity to entrench themselves in communities where they had never had power before or hadn't been able to score in decades.

In one election, the GOP lost more than 20 per cent of the gains it had made in the South. Ever since the Eisenhower days, there has been a slow growth of Republican power in Congress.

Tuesday, the Republicans lost at least 10 of the 34 seats they held in the House. They picked up two others, for a net loss of eight.

Future elections will tell whether the Republican growth in the south has been stopped or whether Tuesday was merely a one-time setback.

President Ford was hurt badly. Some of the wounds are obvious: he will have to contend with a Congress increasingly dominated by Democrats. Some of the wounds are subtle: questions are bound to be asked, some already have been, about the President's ability as a campaigner. He was unable to save even his home district.

The power structure in Congress remains about the same. There will be some shifting of the committee chairmanships where the real power in Congress lies; they were caused more by retirement than by voters. In the House, four Democratic chairmen didn't run for re-election.

In the Senate, Ervin of North Carolina retired. The only committee chairman deposed by the voters was Fulbright in a primary. The voters will hardly notice the difference. The new chairmen will be senior members of Congress who have been knocking on the door of the power posts for years.

Organized labor gambled and won. If you can put your finger on a single legislative result, it would be national health insurance through social security.

Labor stalled a bill in this Congress, figuring that chances were slim of getting its version passed, and figuring that if a big Democratic sweep was in the making it would be better to wait.

Several new Democratic faces for 1976 showed in the elections with impressive victories: Glenn of Ohio; Carey of New York; Stevenson of Illinois; Bumpers of Arkansas; Askew of Florida —to mention a few whose voices will be heard in Democratic national politics with increased authority as a result of yesterday's elections.

In political strategy, Gov. George Wallace wasn't helped by the major Democratic gains. Wallace's power potential is to pick up the pieces of a defeated Democratic party. For Wallace, control of the Democratic party becomes more elusive if the party can score without him.

Is the election of Independent James Longeley as governor of Maine the beginning of something new? The growth of the independent voter is one of the most important political stories of our time.

Independents now could be classified as the second party in America, with Republicans No. 3.

In the past, independents have used their power as the balance between Democrats and Republicans. If independents start using power to back their own, non-affiliated, nonpolitical candidates, the two party system is on the way out.

Edison runs into opposition to its bid for 21% rate hike

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Southern California Edison Co. met opposition Wednesday as it sought a 21 per cent rate increase from the state Public Utilities Commission in the first of six public hearings this month.

William E. Marz, attorney for Edison, cited higher costs, including "record high interest rates, substantial increases in the cost of labor and materials, higher taxes and enormous environmental and research development problems."

Marx said the company also seeks rates that will give a 9.6 per cent rate of return on its investment and a 15 per cent return on common equity.

The rate increase was opposed by Sylvia Siegal of San Francisco, a consumer advocate and executive director of Toward Utility Rate Noramlization.

"I am here to tell this commission —and the new commission that will take office in January —that we consumers have had enough," she said.

"You're not on the open market. You are a protected company."

Helen Chabala, representing the Unemployed Workers Organizing Committee, said unemployed persons, retirees, welfare cases and persons on fixed incomes cannot afford an increase.

"Any increase is too much right now, and 21 per cent is ridiculous," she said.

Nixon cannot testify--doctor

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Richard M. Nixon's attorney indicated today the former president will not be able to provide testimony for the Watergate cover-up trial for two to three months and cannot travel to Washington for a lengthy period of time.

Attorney Herbert J. Miller Jr. filed the four-page affidavit with U.S. District Judge John J. Sirica, who said he would study it and invite suggestions from the prosecution and defense lawyers representing five of Nixon's former associates on trial.

"Because of the patient's weakened condition," Miller said, "it is expected that the earliest time he could participate, without a serious danger to his health, in any activity requiring substantial mental or physical effort would be two to three months.

"It will be an indeterminate time before he has recovered sufficiently to travel any significant distance."

The 'Creative Society' meets the 'New Spirit'

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Ronald Reagan's retiring "Creative Society" today meets the fledgling "New Spirit" political agenda of Democratic Gov.-elect Edmund Brown Jr.

The two seemingly diverse philosophical points of view may have more in common than first seems apparent.

Fresh from a razor-thin victory over Republican gubernatorial nominee Houston I. Flournoy, Brown accepted Reagan's invitation for a late morning conference to discuss the transition of California Government from one administration to the other.

Reagan, whose "Creative Society" of the past eight years will make way Jan. 7 for the "New Spirit" administration of Brown, conceded he was "disappointed" at the nationwide Republican rout at the polls but said he looked "forward" to the programs offered by Democratic-controlled statehouses and the Congress.

"I see nothing in the results of the election that would encourage anything other than balanced budgets and fiscal responsibility," Reagan said Wednesday.

At a Los Angeles news conference, Brown seemed to agree. "If the returns mean anything, people are looking for a new spirit but they don't want to pay a lot of new taxes to achieve it," he added.

"People are in no mood for new taxes," said Brown, who at 36 will become the youngest California chief executive since the Civil War era. He said the vote "indicates the people are not in the mood for big spending."

Reagan, who campaigned hard against Brown, had warned voters that a Democratic-controlled legislature and a Democratic governor would "dismantle" his programs which were guided in large measure by his nationally known "squeeze, cut and trim" fiscal policies.

Brown told newsmen that especially since the Tuesday election wins, the Democrats now had a particular responsibility to perform and deliver.

"It's a great opportunity for the Democrats, but it is going to be a short-lived opportunity if the party doesn't reform itself and if it doesn't lay out an agenda that is realistic and honest."

Brown, the current secretary of state, told newsmen he mapped for California a program "that does not look to the massive social spending programs." He added, "I don't think because there is a problem, money is necessarily the answer."

To many observers, this sounded like a familiar theme borrowed from Reagan's book.

The alternately exuberant and serious governor-elect said "critical" areas demanding top priority attention included energy use and planning, public transportation, state-regulated utility rates, the fight for clean air and the functioning of the criminal justice and penal systems.

Brown also announced a special commission soon would be created to screen and recommend "Republicans, Democrats, independents, men, women, the best people I can find" for appointive positions in his administration.

Topless swim ban passes

COCOA BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — A referendum banning topless sunbathing passed by a surprisingly close vote Tuesday but a leader of the bare breasts forces vowed she wouldn't be bound by the decision.

"The whole National Guard couldn't make me put my top on," said Cindy Mills, 22, a 38-24-36 go-go dancer at the Missile Lounge.

The vote was 1,589 to 1,324 with some absentee ballots still to be counted, and some observers were surprised at the narrow margin in view of the campaigning by Mrs. Lee Gagnon and 36 women volunteers. Mrs. Gagnon said her group had contacted 5,000 of the beach's 5,400 registered voters to urge them to vote for the topless ban.

Miss Mills said the ban violates her individual rights and she intends to keep on sunbathing topless even if it means arrest.

"I'll go to court," she said. "I'm sure the judge will throw the case out of court."

Speaker confident of re-election

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Democrat Leo T. McCarthy Wednesday expressed confidence he would win re-election as Assembly speaker despite an apparent move to unseat him by Assemblyman Willie L. Brown Jr.

McCarthy of San Francisco replaced Bob Moretti, D-Van Nuys, as speaker last June following a bitted Democratic caucus fight with Brown, also of San Francisco.

Tuesday, Democrats captured 55 seats in the 80-member Assembly, one more than the two-thirds needed to pass tax measures and override gubernatorial vetoes.

Because of the new Democratic faces, Brown could pick up additional support which he did not have last summer.

The full Assembly, including Democrats and Republicans, will vote on a speaker next month. If a majority of the Democratic caucus agrees on a speaker, the floor vote becomes procedural.

McCarthy said in a telephone interview he has 35 Democratic votes committed, with five undecided and 15 for Brown.

Brown was not immediately available for comment.

McCarthy said a number of incoming freshmen assemblymen have "been contacted" by Brown in an attempt to determine whether he has enough support to wage a speakership battle.

"I don't believe he has enough support among the Democrats," McCarthy said. "Although in a way, I would sort of prefer we do go to a vote. That would settle the dust down for the next couple of years."

Call her madam again, she lost the election

LIDA JUNCTION, Nev. (UPI) — The euphoria, the last of the house booze and the winning vote margin vanished with the dawn, leaving would be solon Beverly Harrell just a madam again.

Late returns appeared to indicate that Ms. Harrell, who runs the Cottontail Ranch —a brothel —had lost her race for the state assembly by 122 votes.

"I think I'll demand a recount," complained the petite, redhaired owner of the legal bordello, a collection of trailers topped by blinking red lights at a lonely desert crossroad.

"In the early evening, I was leading and the margin widened," she said.

"Then all of a sudden nobody seemed to know anything about totals for many hours, and now today the unofficial count shows I have lost.... Something funny started happening to that vote around midnight."

The count showed Ms. Harrell lost to Don Moody, a service station owner, 2,674 to 2,552. Both are Democrats.

One of the problems is that the three-county district covers 25,000 square miles, almost all of it uninhabited desert, broken by occasional ranches, mines, tiny towns and federal installations.

Voters use paper ballots, and the counting goes slowly.

When it appeared that Ms. Harrell had become the first madam to win election to state office in Nevada —where prostitution is legal on a local option basis —she gave her "girls" the night off and served free champagne to the crowd of wellwishers that jammed the house.

Percy labels election 'negative referendum'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Sen. Charles Percy, R-Ill., called Tuesday's elections a negative referendum, saying "The voters told us what they do not want ... generally they do not want Republicans in office."

Percy, a Republican presidential hopeful until President Ford took over from Richard Nixon, said that even if the GOP had "turned the voters off, Democrats have failed to turn them on. It is increasingly difficult to say what either party stands for anymore."

But, Percy conceded, "I consider the election a negative referendum. The voters told us what they do not want. Generally they do not want Republicans in office, so soon after Watergate and with inflation rampant."

Democrats now control 36 of nation's governorships

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats held control of 36 of the nation's governorships Wednesday, including giants California and New York, providing a powerful grassroots base for their 1976 race for the White House.

At least five of the Democratic governors elected Tuesday can be expected to play a major role in the selection of their party's 1976 candidates, and some may end up running themselves.

While Democrats gained at least five governorships in the elections, their rout was not as strong as predicted. They had hoped to pick up seven to 10 additional statehouses, but were victims of a stunning upset in Ohio where former Republican Gov. John Rhodes ousted Gov. John Gilligan.

They also failed in their attempt to unseat Republican Gov. William Milliken of Michigan, leaving Democrats with control of eight of the big 10 governorships.

The Democrats two big winners were Rep. Huugh Carey in New York and Secretary of State Edmund "Jerry" Brown in California. The two became almost instant presidential timber as they ended the powerful Republican rule built in the states by Govs. Nelson Rockfeller and Ronald Reagan.

Every elected governor of New York since Theodore Roosevelt has run for president.

Rep. Ella Grasso won in a landslide over her House colleague, Republican Robert Steele, in Connecticut and became the first woman to win a governorship on her own merit. The election makes Mrs. Grasso perhaps the most powerful woman politician in America, and a strong influence in her party's 1976 presidential picture.

Republicans, who were given a chance of winning no more than five of the governorship races before the election, won six of the 35 races and were leading by a narrow 100 vote margin in the still undecided Alaksa race.

In addition to New York and California, Democrats took over Republican seats in Massachusetts, Connecticut, Colorado, Oregon, Tennessee, Wyoming and Arizona. But they lost Ohio and South Carolina to Republicans, and Maine to a surprise independent winner, James Longley.

Except for South Carolina, Democrats swept the southern governorship races where two more key presidential figures emerged in the South.

The major one, and one with an unknown impact, was Gov. George Wallace of Alabama whose landslide victory gave him the power base to either influence the 1976 Democratic choice or make another third party attempt.

In Flordia Gov. Reubin Askew, running as "Mr. Clean" in a state that was touched directly by the Watergate scandal, also won in a landslide and provided the Democrats with a youthful and agressive contender. In addition to Ohio, Michigan and South Carolina, Republicans won as expected in Kansas, New Hampshire and Iowa.

In New York, Carey, a veteran Brooklyn congressman defeated Rockefeller's handpicked successor, Gov. Malcolm Wilson. Wilson, who was lieutenant governor under Rockefeller for 15 years, lost by 800,000 votes, a margin larger than Rockefeller ever piled up in any of his four victories.

Brown, whose father lost to Reagan in 1966, took the California governorship by nearly 180,000 votes over Republican Houston Flournoy, the state controller.

Rhodes, who was Ohio governor from 1962-70, won a third term by 15,000 votes, in one of the closest races in the nation.

EDNA RHODES, assistant librarian at the Chaffey High School Memorial Library, has retired after 22 years of service.

"Many changes have taken place since I've come to Chaffey," Mrs. Rhodes said. "When I first started here at Chaffey, the library was shared with the college, and the stacks were closed. Now the stack area is open and a new control desk is in. The book collection has greatly increased, and we now have an extensive audio-visual collection available to the students and the teachers."

Mrs.Rhodes has no definite plans as what to do with her spare time. She and her husband, E. J. Rhodes, live at 1852 Claremont Place in Pomona.

Fire station tax vote scheduled

The Claremont City Council Wednesday night at an adjourned meeting set May 27, 1975 as the date for a bond election to seek funds for a new fire station.

Mayor Bertye Smith made the motion on the date, and said that the council should hold the specifics on a mount and the exact location until a later time.

Public Technology Inc. is working on a valleywide study of fire protection needs, and the council will wait until the first of the year to see the results of the study.

Deputy City Manager Paul Brotzman said that since one cent of taxes per $100 assessed valuation raises $5,645, the city tax rate would have to be raised only $.0502 to cover a $300,000 bond election if the council decided on that amount.

He explained that paying back the money over 20 years would cost $28,332 a year.

Two structural engineers completed a study on fire Station One on Second Street and reported that the building does not have the high construction standards demanded of a fire station, nor does it meet the standards of even a normal office-type building.

City Manager Keith Mulrooney recommended that use of the building erected 49 years ago be discontinued at the earliest possible date.

An architect estimated it would cost $35,000 to rehabilitate the building for office use, not including any architectural finish.

The structural engineers reported that the strength of the concrete walls of the fire station are only 1,700 pounds per square inch, as against a measurement of 3,000 PSI for full-strength concrete.

Councilman Gene Block said he felt no hesitantcy about calling for a bond election.

In other action, the council by a 3-2 vote approved the setting up of city-operated building services, starting July 1, 1975, with a two-week overlap with county services phasing out and city services being phased in.

The council authorized recruiting for the new department starting April 1.

"No" votes were cast by Mayor Bertye Smith and Block.

"I'm looking at our limited city budget, and where we can best spend our dollars," Mrs. Smith said. "The department is not needed essentially."

Block agreed.

Foster Grandparents refused raise in pay

Foster Grandparents participants throughout the state were recently turned down in their request for an increase in hourly stipend.

The program, funded by ACTION, the federal agency in charge of all national volunteer programs such as Peace Corps and Vista, through the California Department of Health, has 100 volunteers working at Pacific State Hospital. This is the largest group of Foster Grandparents working at any hospital in the state.

In turning down the request, ACTION stated, "An increased expenditure for stipends could not be made in this budget year without dismissing from the program many Foster Grandparents across the country since the cost would have to be absorbed by our operational funds for fiscal year 1975."

Foster Grandparents Hospitality Committee at Pacific State Hospital commented, "We, the Foster Grandparents at Pacific State Hospital, will not believe that the phrase as stated by ACTION was meant to be a scare tactic. Rather, it is our intent to accept the response by ACTION as a sincere explanation of the financial situation governing the Foster Grandparent Program."

The problem, according to Betty Miller, state director of the Foster Grandparent program for the California Department of Health, lies in the ACTION budget as set by Congress. "I keep writing ACTION and hoping that we can get an increase for the Foster Grandparents. Congress just has to give more money to the program," she said.

Since the beginning of the program some seven years ago, the stipend has been increased from $1.40 to $1.60 an hour. The group did not ask for a specific increase. Foster Grandparents are over 60 and have a fixed income derived from Social Security. They work four hours a day, five days a week at the hospital."

"Where else can you get so much for so little?" Mrs. Miller asks. "There's a lot of love given here."

She explains that each Foster Grandparent works with two patients; one in the morning for two hours, another in the afternoon. Their major duty is to give the patient individual attention such as he might receive from a grandparent.

PUC will hear views on gas boost Tuesday

The California Public Utilities Commission will hold a public hearing Tuesday in Los Angeles on the Southern California Gas Co.'s application for a $19 million annual rate increase to offset increased expenses.

Proceedings will start at 10 a.m. in the State Office Building, 107 S. Broadway.

In its application, the gas company seeks the increase to offset an $11 million wage increase to become effective Dec. 28 and for other expenses relating to taxes, storage reservoir costs and amortization of engineering studies related to synthetic gas production.

Should the increase be approved, this would add about 33 cents a month to typical residential customers.

Crash survivor learns time can be very precious

When you are lost in the wilderness you become aware of the preciousness of time.

So stated Ben Junvik, an El Monte industrialist, who addressed the Pomona Rotary Club Tuesday on his experience of surviving the crash of alight airplane in the middle of the Alaskan mountain range in May 1972.

"Time is a gift from God," said Junvik, who survived 12 days in the mountains with little food. He was rescrued by two civilians in a helicopter who had joined the Air Force search and rescue operation.

The plane, which was scarecly damaged when it flipped over as it crash landed on a snowy ridge, was brought out of the mountains by helicopter. Junvik said that he subsequently bought the plane and keeps it based at Brackett Field where he flies frequently.

Valley mayor ends role as 'ambassador' of cities

HAROLD HAYES

By MAE TATE
P-B Staff Writer

Mayor Harold Hayes of Montclair completed his year as president of the League of California Cities with a sense of satisfaction and accomplishment.

"The caliber, breadth and scope of the exposure was a rewarding experience. Having this exposure broadens one's perception of city government. The experience has directly and indirectly benefited us in Montclair," Hayes said of this term.

The Montclair official stepped down as president of the 411-city organization last month.

"The pressure of responsibility is off, but I'll still be a member of the board and serve as immediate past president this upcoming year. I'll also continue to participate in the Transportation Committee and the National League of Cities' Community Development Committee," he noted.

As the 1973 president, Hayes had charge of promoting the league's five-point Action Plan. The 76-year-old organization began a series of discussions and public hearings two years ago for development of a plan to deal with the immediate and distant future of the cities throughout the state.

The plan which deals with the major issues of land use planning and environmental control, public employes-employer relations, community repsonsibility, revenue and taxation resources and governmental reform and restructure received unanimous support at the 1973 general conference in San Francisco.

At that time, Hayes was selected to be the man to head the task of implementation of that plan.

During the year, Hayes crisscrossed the state, speaking to special committees, public works departments, city officials and staff, labor relations groups, service clubs and legislators on the subjects of Action.

"My job was to encourage elected, technical and administrative officers to become involved and participate actively in the plan. We approached it on a family basis to enable everyone to have some voice in the needs of the individual cities," Hayes recalled .

"More than 80 per cent of California's population live in cities. So collectively the goals and objectives have a decided impact on the people."

He pointed out that the goals and objectives were "broad and flexible so that cities and groups of cities could utilize the plan to advantage."

As league president, it was also Hayes' responsbility to preside over the quarterly board meetings and the main conference held in October and make administrative decisions.

He was originally elected to the board by the San Bernardino and Riverside counties' delegation of cities.

"I have always said I felt it a privilege and an honor to be elected by my peers," said Hayes.

Hayes also serves as chairman of the Traffic Operation Program Increasing Capacity and Safety (TOPICS) which is charged with review of the Federal Aid Urban program and is a member of the state transportation committee which deals with the distribution of gas tax money. He was recently re-appointed to a second 4-year term as TOPICS chairman.

The new officers of the League of California Cities are Mayor Lee Davies of Modesto, president; Mayor Pete Wilson of San Diego, first vice president; and Mayor Helen Putnam of Petaluma, second vice president. Mrs. Putnam is the first woman elected as a league officer, said Hayes.

Traffic crashes injure 2 in car, 1 on motorcycle

Three persons, one a motorcyclist, were injured in Pomona traffic accidents Tuesday.

The motorcyclist, Jerome K. Loomer, 23, of 1579 S. Garey Ave., Pomona, suffered shoulder, back and neck injuries when he upset his bike in order to avoid hitting a pedestrian at Garey Avenue and Pearl Street shortly after 7 p.m.

Loomer, who was released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital, said a car in a left-turn lane blocked his view of the crosswalk and he didn't see the man crossing until he was almost upon him.

Two persons were injured when their small sedan slammed into the rear of a car stopped at Towne Avenue south of Verde Vista Avenue. Both the driver, Jerald A. Sams, 20, of 872 E. Bonita Ave., Claremont, and his passenger, Maurice McAdoo, 21, of the same address, were released after treatment at Pomona Valley Community Hospital.

The other driver involved in the morning mishap, Donald J. Cross, 41, Alhambra, wasn't hurt.

College to hold fund-raising fete

More than 2,000 persons are expected to attend the annual fund raising "Report and Support Dinner" tonight at 6:30 at Azusa Pacific College.

The college has raised more than $3 million since the first fund-raising dinner rally was held in 1950 through contributions by faculty and staff members, students and alumni.

This year's goal is set at $250,000.

Dr. Cornelius P. Haggard, president of the college, will give a report on the progress of the "Decade of Challenge" program, a 10-year $37.5 million fund raising campaign.

A U.N. lesson in double standards

The double standard is alive and well in the United Nations. Not that there has ever been much doubt about it, but seldom has it been more glaringly apparent than in the debate over the question of expelling the Republic of South Africa because of its racial policies.

Even the conciliatory speech by South Africa's ambassador, R. F. Botha, in which he pledged his country to "do everything in our power to move away from discrimination based on race or color"—an astounding reversal of South Africa's policy of apartheid—had little effect on black African delegates pressing for a show-down vote on expulsion, blocked in the end only by the Security Council vetoes of the three western powers.

In the meantime, these same delegates continue to ignore far worse violations of human rights in many of their own countries that make South Africa at its worst look positively benevolent.

For example, a recent report to the U.N. by the International Commission of Jurists described the situation in Uganda as a "reign of terror." It is estimated that more than 90,000 Ugandans have been murdered or executed in the three years since General Idi Amin overthrew the government of President Obote and instituted a terrorist dictatorship. The killing has struck virtually every tribe in the country, including Amin's own tribe.

Yet not since the 1972 session, when Britain protested the persecution and expulsion of 60,000 Ugandan Asians, has a voice been raised in the U.N. to condemn Amin or the arming of his regime by the Soviet Union, Libya, Egypt and Algeria. The commission's report has been placed in the U.N.'s file-and-forget box.

The silence of the Western nations in this matter is not surprising. They have nothing to gain by sticking their necks out to protest the oppression of black Africans by black Africans. What is incomprehensible is the self-righteous blindness of the black Africans themselves.

But then, much of what passes for statesmanship in the United Nations is beyond comprehension.

Welcoming aboard the hijackers

Although it seems somewhat like handling a bank robber a key to the vault in hopes of reforming him, there may be some substance to the argument that the best way to stop the activities of Palestinian terrorists is to give them a voice on the international stage.

That, at any rate, is the most optimistic way of looking at the overwhelming decision by the U.N. General Assembly to recognize the Palestine Liberation Organization as the official spokesman for all Palestinians and to permit it to participate in forthcoming debates on the future of the Middle East.

What is a little more difficult to rationalize is a resolution approved at about the same time by the International Civil Aviation Organization (ICAO) to extend "observer status" to national liberation movements, including the PLO.

Delegates from the International Federation of Airline Pilots Associations opposed the resolution on the grounds that PLO observers could learn about secret ICAO security measures that have been put in effect to prevent terrorist attacks such as have wreaked bloody havoc at airports in Rome, Athens, Tel Aviv and elsewhere, as well as in aircraft in flight.

Having hijacked the world at the United Nations, comments Near East Report, a Washington-based, pro-Israel publication, the PLO may now be admitted to a body which has the task of curbing hijackers.

Man, manager

When Frank Robinson became the first black manager of a major league baseball team he expressed the hope that he would be judged not as a first, not as a black, but on the basis of what he achieves.

From all reports, Robinson is quite a man. He long since demonstrated his skills as a player. In winter ball he proved himself a skilled field manager and a highly competent handler of men, whatever their skills whatever their color.

The record books of the future will not be the only index of Frank Robinson's success. The won and lost column is important. Championships are the goal of every manager, every owner. But there is an additional human factor involved that is even more significant in a way. This is what kind of men a manager turns out; how he deals with personal problems among the players; what kind of spirit he evokes.

It won't be easy for Frank Robinson, especially if his firstness and his blackness loom too large in the eyes of those who report and analyze his career. The odds say he'll make good. Let's hope the rest of us do.

Debasing the dignity of police

I read with disgust your recent article about the police in a city (was it in Oklahoma?) who planted a "wino" and a female plainclothes officer on a corner and in a few minutes arrested several men for soliciting her and who were then subject to fine and jail sentence. Talk about preying on the sick!

First, what twisted legal reasoning interpets this as NOT entrapment. Even (especially?) an adolescent knows that IS entrapment.

Second, anyone who isn't so narrow he has blisters on his eyeballs recognizes the difference between that kind of proposition which rises out of loneliness, immaturity, curiosity, and who knows what other sick but non-violent reason, and the true criminal who attacks, rapes, or coerces.

I have teen-age sons and daughters and I pray that they escape rape, perversion, narcotics, etc. as they grow the precarious and sometimes painful way to maturity. It's ironic that police be a part of that list. I'm afraid an encounter such as referred to in that article might be even more permanently destructive and scarring than some of the other tragedies.

I wonder if the periodic pursuit of prostitution in massage parlors, homosexuals, etc. means we have police of that kind here. I'm thankful to God, however, that the vast majority of our officers have a far more constructive concept of police work. I hope they also have the courage (and it takes a lot!) to protest those activities such as entrapment and sexual obsession that debase the dignity of their profession. — J. L. D., Pomona. How U.S. subverted Chilean economy

WASHINGTON — The secret economic war against Chile's late Salvadore Allende is described in some fascinating documents that we have obtained. They tell how the U.S. used economic subversion to undermine the Allende government and set the stage for a military coup.

The documents raise the question of whether the U.S. has been trying covertly to pauperize left-wing governments and replace them with military dictatorships around the world.

The story began with the 1970 election of the leftist Allende. Although he was freely elected, his Marxist views were distasteful to Washington.

They were even more distasteful to International Telephone and Telegraph, which correctly anticipated Allende would seize its Chilean holdings. The conglomerate, therefore, sought to enlist the Central Intelligence Agency in an undercover conspiracy against Allende.

We reported in March of 1972 that ITT wanted to "promote economic collapse in Chile" and "force a military coup." This is precisely what happened 18 months after we wrote it. The story of how it happened can now be told.

At first, American Ambassador Nathaniel Davis cabled from Chile that the "prospects of military intervention for the foreseeable future are extremely small."

Public opposition would have to become "so overwhelming and discontent so great," his secret cables stressed, "that military intervention is overwhelmingly invited. It is held that military will wait for this public repudiation to become more clear."...

The U.S. then began to create the "discontent" that Davis had advised would be necessary. Secretly and systematically, the U.S. sought to bankrupt the Allende government by denying multi-national bank loans for Chile.

As the largest contributor, the U.S. virtually controls the Inter-American Development Bank. A secret congressional study now states that the bank, which is supposed to disregard the politics of borrowing nations, cut off loans to the Allende government for almost three years.

As evidence that this was politically inspired, the bank quickly granted $97.3 million in loans to the new military leaders after they overthrew Allende last year.

The World Bank, headed by former Defense Secretary Robert McNamara, also refused Allende loans. But the congressional study found this consistent with traditional World Bank policies against granting loans to nations with dubious credit ratings.

However, we have obtained secret World Bank minutes, which apparently were not available to the congressional experts. These show that McNamara came under fire behind closed doors for withholding loans from the Allende government.

The 54-page congressional study, prepared by the Library of Congress, charges that the Inter-American bank totally cut off new loans to the Allende regime. Since Chile had come to depend on these loans, the policy amounted to financial strangulation.

"No new loans were proposed for Chile," states the secret study, "even though 1971 was a year during which the inflation rate was less than during the previous years." In other words, Chile should have been a better financial risk but still got no loans.

This drying up of dollars continued in 1972, as Allende began sinking deeper into the economic mire. In contrast, the bank granted Argentina $163 million and Uruguay $10 million, although their inflation rates were no better than Chile's. Indeed, no other member nation "experienced as long a financial dought" as did Chile during the Allende years.

As a case history, the study tells of an agricultural loan that Chile desperately needed. The loan was to come from "a fund over which the United States exercises a veto." Allende made an urgent appeal for the money but was turned down. A few months after he was shot to death, his military successors had no trouble arranging a $22 million agricultural loan.

At the World Bank, meanwhile, the secret minutes show that McNamara came under attack on Feb. 5, 1974, over his failure to loan money to the Allende government. Delegates from Scandinavia, the Philippines, India and, more mildly, Italy criticized his policy toward Chile.

During the Allende years, complained Denmark's H.E. Kastoft, the board had "not even been formally informed. . .of the bank's lending policy toward Chile.

"Does the board have no role to play," he demanded, "in case of termination of lending operations?" He grumbled that "with hindsight one might wonder" about the discrimination against Chile.

McNamara retorted that the loan he was now seeking for the Chilean junta had been initiated by "the Allende government in April or May of 1973."

But the fiery Dane would not be put off. He asked McNamara point blank why "we have not been given timely opportunity to discuss and take a position on the bank's policy toward Chile."

The Philippines' Placido Mapa joined in the criticism. He said he "greatly lamented the lack of action by the bank vis-a-vis Chile in the last three or four years. India's S.R. Sen said he was also "unhappy" over the way the Allende government had been treated.

The economic strangulation left Chile gasping for money, its inflation gone wild and its production disrupted by strikes. Thus Allende became vulnerable to the military coup that the CIA and ITT had originally sought.

PAUL HARVEY

Profits profit workers most

The United States suffered more strikes last month. With the overburdening higher cost of everything threatening to cave us in, some unions continue to demand and get wage raises which inevitably will further increase our cost of living.

Most of a million telephone workers, for example. They sought and got a wage raise from you. AT&T signed the contract—but with your name. You will pay the higher phone bills.

Last month there was more strike activity in the United States than any month in three years, but some commanding voices are hollering "Stop!" Some whose names you know are warning workers that they are losing more than they are gaining.

And some of those voices are labor's leaders! The Phoenix Symphony Orchestra demanded more than donors would pay, so the symphony season has been canceled and 83 musicians are out of work.

Elsewhere across the nation, labor disputes have disrupted everything from pro football to public transportation. Since the end of wage controls last April, a surge of labor disputes threatens to create an army of high-salaried unemployed.

One recent week there were more strikes than any week in 30 years. It's both understandable and indefensible. We're all pinched in the pocketbook by higher prices, yet demanding more wages without increased production inevitably drives those prices higher still.

For the National Assn. of Manufacturers to sound a warning might sound like a selfish plea for industry's interests. But at long last we are hearing warnings from labor leaders of the stature of I.W. Abel, president of the United Steel Workers.

He says our economy will "go to hell" unless labor stops asking for huge raises which management passes along in higher prices.

Abel says, "We from labor can't be going to the table every year getting 12 per cent or 15 per cent increases in benefits for workers and then have management keep raising prices unless we want the economy to go to hell."

He's not the first, and he's not alone. Some union leaders in the construction trades have voluntarily modified their contracts and reduced hourly wages in an effort to hypo home building.

And now let me read you an editorial which is not from my own typewriter. It's from a union publication, Intermezzo, published by and for the American Federation of Musicians: "Attacks on profits attack you.

"It may be smart politics to attack profits, but it's bad economics. Your job exists because of profits. America's ability to survive foreign competition depends on keeping our industry modern, and some of our industry's machines are museum pieces. We have to have an up-to-date productive capacity, and it takes profits to pay for updating. "And we can't expect government to bail us out.

"Without taxes on profits and taxes on you and me who are employed by profitable businesses, government would have no bail money. "When anybody attacks profits, he is attacking you."

I must confess I was a bit startled when I noted that the price of cigarettes sold in vending machines is now 60 cents a pack. Having quit smoking about 10 years ago, I was somewhat out of touch, but that 60 cent price got me to remembering. When I started my smoking career on such popular brands as Imperials, Obaks, Malechrinos and Turkish Delights, 10 cents got you a fistful of the coffin nails.

It is reported that in many restaurants throughout the country, sugar can no longer be found on the tables. —Reason? —Because of skyrocketing sugar prices people are stealing the little sugar packets once found there.

Many status minded middle class Americans are becoming a bit perturbed about their ratings since the government has begun correlating family income figures and poverty levels. They want it distinctly understood that, despite the recession, they are still upper middle class citizens and are not to be confused with middle class or lower middle class as financially defined by the government.

Oh well, aren't we all suffering because of inflation? I find myself going farther and farther into the red these days. Once I was a wine connoisseur. —Today I have to settle for Cucamonga Red.

Campaign reform at the grass roots

WASHINGTON — The U.S. Congress has a great deal to learn from some state legislature on writing election campaign laws. And more to learn from public referendums such as that held in California.

In Texas, California and Washington, citizens can file lawsuits to force candidates to comply with financial disclosures.

In at least one state, contributions are limited to individuals. No special interest or public interest groups, no corporations or unions can give money to candidates, either directly or through separate permanent political committees.

One state not only requires lobbyists to make detailed reports of expenditures but prohibits them from making any type of political contribution.

A number of legislatures require that officials and candidates make available their personal financial records and, in addition, have set up monitoring committees to make certain complete, accurate reports are turned in on time.

One state allows political committees to donate to candidates only those funds collected from members within the candidate's own district. That same state prohibits contributions from any one individual or group greater than 5 per cent of a candidate's spending limitation.

One state not only requires business firms and labor unions to set up separate political committees if they want to donate to candidates; it also requires that these political groups make a clear distinction between their organizational and financial support of candidates and their lobbying of legislators and officials in the executive branch. The financing of these two types of operation must be clearly separated.

The above, of course, is a summary of some of the provisions enacted by some of the states. These restrictions and others, including limits on campaign financing and regulations requiring the public disclosure of donors, are by no means uniform or universal. Most have been enacted or improved in the past two years as a result, presumably, of Watergate. In total, 47 state legislatures have passed some sort of financial disclosure legislation; numbers are in the process of expanding the right of private citizen access to what goes on in legislative committee meetings.

What's interesting, of course, is that some state legislatures have been able and willing to go so much further in meaningful campaign reform than the Congress. Folk wisdom has it that if you want to get reform, you had better go to Washington because you'll never be able to get anything done locally.

When the problem is put to the public, as in California, it's clear the majority of citizens are now ready for much more stringent laws on campaign financing and other election practices than are the Congress and most state legislatures.

It is now evident that if private citizens in every state would develop codes of fair election rules and present these to the public through local referendums where such are allowed, we could, within the next half dozen years or so have elections in this country that would raise the ethical standards of our elected officials to tolerable levels.

ANN LANDERS

The 'other woman' states her case and claims relationship is heaven

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Are you a big enough person to print a letter in defense of "The Other Woman"? I'm one and know that scene well.

I am 27, have never been married (or even asked), have an excellent position and my own apartment. (Nobody keeps me.) I cook when I please, have my own friends and interests, and most important, my own identity, independence and freedom.

I have known this man for eight years. He was married five years ago. I'm more than happy with our "arrangement." Of course I won't get any alimony when (or if) he decides to move on, and I won't collect any insurance when he dies. I do get a bottle of wine now and then and sometimes flowers, but no big gifts. I don't have my lover Sundays or holidays, and not many weekends. But when we are together it's heaven. Our relationship was established because we both wanted it. We've agreed that either of us can call it quits if and when we want to.

Now that you know what I get, I'll tell you what he DOESN'T get. Curlers in bed, dirty dishes in the sink, squawking kids, bills to worry about and lots of nagging. He receives my undivided attention, lots of loving, a back rub when he is tired, and always soft lights and beautiful music. He sleeps with me because he wants to. He sleeps with his wife because he has to.

Call it an ego trip for both of us, if you like, but what's wrong with it if we need and want it? Will you answer me, please? —Nameless, ..Natch

Dear Natch: There are names for women like you, but I don't believe that a label would serve any useful purpose in a situation such as this.

If it doesn't bother you that this man knew you for three years and then married someone else, you have a pretty tough hide, honey. Moreover, your ego must be awfully hungry if it can be fed by a back-street affair with a man who is eating his cake and having it too. You, my dear, are settling for crumbs. Some trip!

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I am so furious I just called my lawner and asked if I could sue you. He said to forget it.

You, Ann Landers, with your stupid advice, have cost me $60 in swimming lessons. My 11-year-old son was always afraid of the water and finally after every ruse imaginable, we got him to agree to take swimming lessons. He has taken six lessons, which cost $10 each.

The teacher said he is still afraid of the water, but at least he is able to float. We considered this great progress. Then you had to come out and announce that you are a "nonswimmer"—could never learn—and that did it. Now my son says HE is a non swimmer, just like Ann Landers. He refuses to go back for more swimming lessons.

You've lost a long-time fan in Florida and I want you to know it. —A Mother Who Is Mad

Dear Mad: I hate to lose a fan, but facts are facts. I am a "nonswimmer" and confessed it in the hope that I might make that "nondriver" feel better. (Remember the woman in her 60s who took 40 driving lessons and failed the test four times?)

Maybe your son will change his mind. I hope so. Swimmers DO have more fun.

Is alchoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism—Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 35 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

Operation gives mom 'earie' feeling

By ERMA BOMBECK

"How do you feel about girls piercing their ears?" asked my daughter.

"My feeling is that your body is your own and if a girl wants to punch holes in her earlobes with an icepick, it is strictly her own business. We don't live in the Victorian era anymore. Everyone is a human being in her own right and it is her decision to make."

"I'm thinking of piercing mine," she said.

Over my dead body!"

"But you just said it was up to the girl."

"That's before I knew you were the piercee," I said. "Where would you go to have it done?"

"Ann could do it."

"ANN! The girl who plays with her gum and never washes her hands after she plays with the dog? Absolutely not!"

"There's nothing to it. You just put an ice cube behind your ear to sorta numb it and push a sterilized needle through. You wouldn't have to watch."

"Hah! I suppose you think that would bother me?"

"You wouldn't go to see Love Story because they didn't have a nurse in attendance in the lobby."

"Pale people make me faint. Is that so strange?"

"No, but I don't see what bothers you about something so simple."

"If it was so simple an operation, Good Housekeeping would have put out a kit on it. Of course, if you want to defy your mother and go ahead and have Ann, the Butcher, perform this primitive operation on her kitchen table, your mother will stand by through the three grades of infection."

"All right," said my daughter. "I'll have it done in a department store. If you buy their earrings, they'll pierce your ears."

"I'll watch," I said.

I came to with my head in Baked Goods and my feet in Better Sportswear. "Is it over?" I gasped.

"Yes," said my daughter. "You did fine. You passed out just after you asked the anesthesiologist what kind of anesthetic he used and he turned out to be the jewelry buyer. See my earrings?"

She flipped back eight pounds of hair to reveal a little gold ring the size of a comma in her earlobe.

It was hardly worth my scrubbing up for.

THE DOCTOR COMMENTS

Colon condition is linked to nerves

By Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Could you please tell me what nerves have to do in causing a colon condition and if nerves can be the only cause? How serious is it if the colon should perforate? Could this also cause an abscess on the colon and liver?

DEAR READER — There is a network of nerve fibers that penetrate the wall of the colon. These little nerves stimulate the muscle in the wall of the colon to contract or relax. They affect the blood flow to the colon by constricting or relaxing the blood vessels and they affect the amount of secretions or mucus formed in the colon.

The nerves function on their own without your conscious control. The network is hooked up to the hypothalamus in your brain which is the seat of your emotions. Depending upon what emotion you are experiencing, the colon will be engorged with blood or literally blush, or the blood will be drained out of it, making it pale.

If your colon were readily visible to other people you would have a hard time concealing your emotions.

It follows that anxiety and nervous states can send impulses to the colon that can cause overcontraction or spasm of colon muscles or form excess mucus and otherwise affect its function. Depending on the balance of factors, this can result in diarrhea, constipation, or spastic colon.

Now, nervous states are not the only thing, though, that can cause dysfunction of the colon. Various diseases of the colon itself can cause dysfunction. These include diseases such as food poisoning or even a tumor of the colon.

The function of the colon is also affected by what you eat and drink. Some people do not tolerate coffee very well at all, and it can affect the function of the colon. Vrious flavor oils can irritate the colon as can spices such as garlic.

If you eat food that contains no bulk, the colon may not have enough undigested fiber material to work against and it will overcontract or go into spasm. That is one reason why you need roughage in your diet, specifically bulky vegetables and cereals.

The colon won't perforate from nerves alone. You usually have to have had some pocket-like formations of diverticula formed first. These can rupture, and the effect may be much like a ruptured appendix, though usually on the left side. And, like a ruptured appendix, if the perforation is large and permits bacteria from the colon to be seeded in the abdomen, it can cause a liver abscess or abscesses elsewhere in the abdomen.

DEAR DR. LAMB — Do the fats and oils in pecans, almonds, and avocados cause cholesterol to build up in the body?

DEAR READER — None of these contain cholesterol. However, too many calories of any foods, and particularly fats, apparently stimulate the formation of excess fatty particles and cholesterol in the body in most people. If you stay lean and don't eat too many of these foods, they are fine. All three of these items are high in fat content, even though they contain no cholesterol.

Send your questions to Dr. Lamb, in care of the Progress-Bulletin, P.O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019. For a copy of Dr. Lamb's booklet on spastic colon, send 50 cents to the same address and ask for the "Spastic Colon" booklet.

THE LIGHTER SIDE

Be thankful it's only a TV movie

By DICK WEST

WASHINGTON (UPI) The television networks are already hard at work on their "second season" —i.e., dredging up shows to replace the ones that bombed in the first season.

There is quite a bit of assimilation, not to say imitation, in this process. I understand, for instance, that one new show under consideration is a series called "Planet of the Japes."

According to those who have seen the pilot film, it involves a crew of astronauts who return from a voyage into deep space to find the earth has been taken over by night club comedians.

Immediately upon the landing of their spaceship, the astronauts are captured by a tribe of second bananas, played by actors wearing Don Rickles masks.

Hands tied behind backs, they are marched to a jungle clearing where the comedians have erected a huge shrine, shaped like a head table.

It soon becomes apparent the astronauts are to be sacrificed in some sort of pagan ritual. There follows a blood-chilling scene in which the captives are dragged up to the dais and roasted.

One by one, the comics arise and torture them with a horrifying fusillade of insult jokes. But I am getting ahead of the story.

Through flashbacks and other tricky techniques, the audience is made aware of the circumstances under which the comedians got control of the planet.

It seems that while the astronauts were journeying to the far reaches of the universe, a disaster of cataclysmic proportions occurred on earth.

Arab oil producers gained possession of all the money in the world except 87 cents, which they had to spend on imported camel food.

The petroleum potentates reasoned that if camels could be converted to operate on oil, it would spare them the necessity of sending out for food.

So they sunk all the world's riches in a project to develop an oil-burning camel.

It didn't work—carburetor trouble apparently—and the project floundered on the desert sands. Soon thereafter civilization collapsed, throwing the earth's surviving creatures into a primeval struggle for survival.

From out of the primordial ooze arose the comics. Thanks to the thick skins they had developed through constant exposure to hostile audiences, they emerged predominant, barely winning out over the rhinoceros, the snapping turtle and the armadillo. But all is not lost.

In the scene before the penultimate commercial, a couple of the captive astronauts escape by pretending to go to the men's room and sneaking out the fire door.

For Friday, Nov. 8

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Don't take things for granted today if it involves your work. Be extremely thorough. Keep your eyes on those working for you.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) It's good to be optimistic but try to be realistic as well at this time. Don't leave everything up to Lady Luck or you'll come up short.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) In a conversation you'll be having you'll be apt to lay it on a trifle thick about members of your family have accomplished.

CANCER (June 21-July 22) At the time you make the commitment, your offer will be sincere and well-intended. Later you'll see it was a foolish gesture and want to back out.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) You're going to be in an overly generous mood and give away something that you'll later have use for and wish you had back.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) An understanding you have with one you're quite fond of is getting a little hazy. Do what you can to get both back on the same wavelength.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) Think before you ask another to put herself out for you. It may be far more of an imposition than you realize.

SCORPIO (Oct. 24-Nov. 22) You will be tempted to gamble in some manner on a friend or acquaintance. It's best you take no risks at this time on anyone but yourself.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 23-Dec. 21) You're coasting a bit too much presently regarding something you want to attain. It won't get done unless you become more active.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You tend to grasp the essence of ideas now but you're overlooking many important little details.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 19) Try not to borrow money from someone now, unless you're absolutely certain you can later repay it without straining your resources.

PISCES (Feb. 20-March 20) The ground under your feet isn't as solid as you think in a close association you have. One of the parties is more of a taker than a giver.

Your Birthday Nov. 8

You will find yourself involved this year with more organizations than you have before. Impressive contacts will be made with some very influential people.

Recreation dept. expands its activities

The Montclair Recreation Department is implementing three new activities for local residents.

Bicycle-riding enthusiasts are invited to meet at the Montclair High School parking lot on Saturdays at 8:30 a.m., weather permitting. Because the length of each trip will be approximately 20 to 25 miles, it is recommended that participants be at least 12 and have a bicycle that is in good running condition.

John Simpson is the supervisor. There is no fee.

On Fridays, the department offers baby-sitting services at the recreation buildling for children 3 and older from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

This is a community service for parents who want to leave their children while they are on business or shopping. There is a fee of 50 cents per hour, per child, for the first three hours, and $1 per hour after three hours.

Betty Folmer and Carol Gatzke are supervisors of the program.

A new six-week session in belly dance instruction will be held Thursdays at the Montclair High School activity room.

Classes will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. for beginners and from 8:30 to 10 p.m. for intermediate students. The fee for the session will be $15. If participants wish to also register for the following six-week session which will begin on Jan. 9, the fee would be $24.

Professional dancer Glenda Batten is the instructor. She will teach with emphasis on the master of finger symbols and development of individual style.

Lessons in costume design and construction will also be featured. There will be demonstrations by professional dancers and group visits to leading clubs featuring professional dancers.

Registration will be taken at the activity room prior to the first lesson.

Handicapped workshop to have open house

The Pomona Valley Sheltered Workshop, 4607 Brooks St., Montclair, will celebrate its eighth anniversary with open house festivities Friday, beginning at 7 p.m.

Refreshments will be served and tours provided through the 13,000-square-foot facility while workers demonstrate their jobs.

The workshop began eight years ago in a 2,000-square-foot building and with 15 trainees and two employes. This is the second year in its new location at 4607 Brooks St. and it has again expanded to allow more handicapped adults to participate in the vocational program.

During 1974, the workshop leased two smaller buildings, allowing an increase to 140 in enrollment.

The growth rate of the workshop is attributed to the increasing community awareness and participation in the program.

Chaffey College maintains two classes titled "Vocational Skills for the Handicapped" and three part-time teachers at the workshop. The Baldy View Regional Occupational Program also provides a class and two part-time teachers.

Future expansion at the workshop depends upon the availability of additional building space.

The workshop, which serves all disabilities regardless of type or degree of handicap, provides services to the Department of Rehabilitation, Inland Counties Regional Center, Los Angeles County Regional Center and Pacific State Hospital client transfer program. The facility also has a work experience program for two special schools in Pomona and Ontario.

The program is designed to help the handicapped person discover his talents and develop vocational skills. Real work is performed in a real situation. The entire process of the work world is duplicated, its presures, demands and requirements. The duplication can be adjusted to fit the needs and temper of the individual trainee.

The officers of the sheltered workshop include Ralph Lyons, executive director; Leona Lyons, assistant director; Lou Marchio, general manager; and Fred Scrimes, treasurer.

Speculators beware

Is gold worth its weight in trouble?

By ELIZA PAUL

WASHINGTON (NEA) — Gold, which Americans will be able to legally own by the end of the year for the first time since the Great Depression, won't be much of a hedge against inflation. Not only does the U.S. Treasury plan to sell off its considerable gold stock to keep the price down in case of a rush, but it's expensive to keep around for the investor who doesn't bury it in the back yard.

Rep. Henry S. Reuss (D-Wis.), who authorized the legislation making gold ownership possible, cautions against buying it as an investment. "It's a good way to take a good short-term capital loss," he says, pointing out that gold pays no interest or dividends and that owners will be strapped with vault or insurance costs.

£ FRANC DEUTSCHEMARK $
BRETTON WOODS

The Treasury, which anticipates an initial buying spree, stands ready to sell off a portion of its $11.7 billion in gold holdings to keep the price from rising since the government no longer needs to hold onto it for international monetary purposes. The 276 million ounces of U.S.-owned gold is enough to put a damper on prices for a long' long time.

It became illegal for all but industrial users and rare coin collectors to own gold in 1933 when Congress decided to pump up the Depression economy by setting a new, higher price for the metal. While this didn't make economic sense, there was a logical fear that Americans would hoard their gold coins — which would suddenly be worth more — instead of buying goods. And the nation needed a spending spree to get things moving again.

Up to that time, the price of gold had been set at $20.67 per ounce since 1793. All coins were made of gold and coins were literally worth their weight in gold — a $20 gold piece contained $20 worth of metal. Paper money could also be converted into gold but this too was halted for Americans by the 1933 act.

Citizens were required to turn all their gold currency over to the Federal Reserve Banks and, under legislation passed the following year, the Reserve Banks in turn handed theirs over to the Treasury which melted them down to be stored in vaults. The government only got back about a third of the gold coins in circulation, but the rest were soon classified as "rare" and therefore legal to hold. But melting them down and playing Gnome of Zurich in the basement was strictly forbidden, and still is.

Gold became the kingpin of the international monetary system after World War II when the Bretton Woods Agreement pegged all currencies to the dollar — then the strongest currency — and pegged the dollar to gold at $35 per ounce. The United States had to hold the price of gold to keep the new system from coming unglued and it was feared that the price would be pushed up if U.S. citizens were allowed to buy it. So the ban remained in effect.

The Bretton Woods plan was almost shattered by a run on gold by private speculators overseas in 1967 and 1968 and the result was establishment of a "two tier" gold market. The official price would be held at $35 per ounce and the free market price for private traders could go wherever it wanted to. Today, after two dollars devaluations in a world of so-called "floating currencies" which aren't pegged to anything, the official gold price is $42.22 per ounce.

The experience of speculators after the two-tier system was initiated may be a good lesson for would-be U.S. investors. The price of free market gold initially climbed to around $40 per ounce, but by early 1970 dropped to even less than the official price.

Free market prices have since skyrocketed and the United States halted gold convertibility by foreigners in 1971 before prices went through the ceiling. In 1972, an ounce of gold was going for $60 on the London market, the main trading center, and the next year it was selling for around $100. In late March of this year, the price peaked at $180 per ounce but has since drifted downward to $140.

At those prices, it's no bargain and investors with only a limited amount of cash or fear of losing their shirts would probably do well to avoid the gold market entirely, according to a Treasury official. Commercial dealers will rarely sell less than 10 ounces to a single customer and the less gold bought, the higher the price. Like cereal and laundry detergent, the precious metal is also subject to handling costs and dealers will charge as much for taking care of 10 ounces as 30.

If there is a market for smaller quantities, it will cost even more. And that cute little gold ingot on the coffee table, already overpriced, will be subject to all the fluctuations of an unpredictable market if the owner ever wants to sell it.

Big investors will be able to buy gold from refineries and banks which sell it in practically any form, including bars or bullion. Small quantities at higher prices will probably be available just about anywhere, from the local jeweler or a department store. The Treasury official cautions that small investors should buy from reputable dealers rather than bargain hunting.

Even for the big time investor, gold buying could turn out to be a bad deal. Such investment, according to the Treasury official, "is dangerous but fun — if you have a lot of money to lose."

Of course, the person who has everything may want a small ingot for the home anyway, and that will have to be insured by a "floater" insurance policy separate from other household items the way art and jewelry are. A spokesman for the Insurance Information Institute says companies will insure gold in "modest amounts" but adds that "if someone bought a couple million dollars worth of the stuff and put it under their mattress, we wouldn't want any part of it."

New treatment reducing dangers for diabetics

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — University of California researchers have discovered a new treatment which they say promises to cut down the dangers of blindness, heart trouble and kidney failure in diabetics.

Five million persons suffer from diabetes, which ranks fifth in the leading causes of death by disease.

Dr. Peter H. Forsham, director of the Metabolic Research Unit at the university's San Francisco branch, Wednesday said the new treatment involves a combination of insulin, long in general use by diabetics, and a new drug called somatostatin.

Diabetes is a disease that affects the production of two hormones —insulin and glucagon. Both are secreted by the pancreas.

Insulin lowers the release of sugar by the liver, and glucagon raises it. When a person has diabetes, his insulin secretion is deficient while his glucagon secretion is excessive.

"Insulin injection reduces the production of sugar, but does not affect glucagon secretion, and it has not been possible previously to effectively control blood sugar levels with insulin alone," Forsham said.

"The remarkable thing about somatostatin is that it does reduce glucagon secretion."

He said 10 volunteer human patients were given somatostatin and insulin in treatment and it was found this "completely prevented the characteristic rise in blood sugar that diabetics suffer after a meal."

Dr. John E. Gerich, assistant research physician, said, "The most crucial finding, in terms of patients' benefits, is that the combination of somatostatin and insulin completely abolished the post-meal hyperglycemia (high blood sugar levels) in diabetics and was more effective than insulin alone."

POOL PROFESSOR — Wayne State University pool instructor John de Putron, left, and student Jerry Silverstein watch rack breakup. Forty-five WSU students have enrolled in de Putron's billiard classes.

LOCUST, N.J. (UPI) — Lithuanian seaman Simas Kudirka, rejected by U.S. Coast Guard officials four years ago when he sought political asylum and subsequently jailed in Siberia, Wednesday went shopping with his wife and children after spending his first night in the United States.

"It's a long way from Siberia to America," said Dr. Roland Paegle, his host.

Kudirka, whose mother was born in New York City thus entitling her son to U.S. citizenship, arrived in the United States with his family Tuesday after finally being permitted to emigrate from Russia.

"It's kind of like a dream come true," Dr. Paegle said Wednesday at his home here where the Kudirkas spent their first night.

Kudirka, his wife Evgene and their two children, Evaldas, 8, and daughter, Lolita, 14, were permitted to leave the Soviet Union following four years of efforts by Lithuanian-American groups to help him emigrate.

On Nov. 23, 1970, Kudirka jumped on board the U.S. Coast Guard cutter Vigilant when it pulled alongside a Lithuanian fishing vessel off the Massachusetts coast. Kudirka told the Vigilant's commander that he wanted to defect but the skipper, Commander Ralph W. Eustis, was instructed to refuse and Kudirka was dragged back on board the trawler by its crew.

Officials in Washington later acknowledged that there had been a serious error in judgment and disciplinary action subsequently was taken against several Coast Guard officers including the Vigilant's commanding officer, Rear Admiral William B. Ellis, then commander of the First Coast Guard District and his chief of staff.

Kudirka was returned to the Soviet Union, convicted of treason and sentenced to 10 years in prison. But last August, in a move aimed at improving U.S.-Soviet detente, the Supreme Soviet ordered Kudirka's release and ruled he was entitled to U.S. citizenship.

Dr. Paegle said Kudirka was shocked and surprised after being permitted to emigrate here. The Kudirkas spent their first day in their new country shopping with Mrs. Paegle and visiting neighborhoods in this shore community.

Kudirka, 45, hopes to discuss publicly the plight of Soviet dissidents, according to his host.

Dr. Paegle said Kudirka "feels an obligation to tell people how others are trying to stand up for human rights.

But, he said, Kudirka "had asked for thinking time. There's a rather strong suggestion that he should keep a low profile and not get the Soviets too angry and jeopardize other people trying to get out."

Mortuary hosts college students for course in death

ENID, Okla. (UPI) — A field trip to a mortuary is hardly a normal activity for a college class, but then little about the "Sociology of Death and Dying" course at Phillips University fits the academic stereotypes.

Brian Hinson, co-owner of the Henniger-Allen Funeral Home, hosted Prof. Lloyd Taylor's 26 students during a three-hour session that involved a tour of he facilities, a brief presentation by Hinson and a question and answer session.

The tour included the chapel, state rooms, family and waiting rooms, preparation room and casket display rooms.

"The purpose of the course is to deal with this very common human problem and see it in a sociological and anthropological perspective," Taylor said. "It is an area most Americans are shielded from."

Hinson said, "Most college students have had no contact with death whatsoever. Many have a misunderstanding of what death is and what funeral homes do.

"People tend to feel it's an unpalatable job that needs to be done, and they don't realize a lot of good living value can come out of it."

Taylor said he felt the first-hand experience of visiting the mortuary would give his course an added dimension.

"Questions are triggered by seeing things at the funeral home that would never arise in a person's mind otherwise," he said. "It can open new areas of thinking for the individual."

The students' responses have been favorable.

"It's interesting to see it from a professional perspective," said Carolyn Blake, a sophomore from Pawhuska, Okla.

"If for instance someone in my family was critically ill or dying in the hospital, I think I'd be able to handle it a lot better now that I've had a lot of the feelings that person is experiencing explained to me."

In evaluating the course, Taylor mentioned a student who was confronted with two deaths in his immediate family soon after he took the course.

"This person," the professor said, "proved to be the steadying influence in the family."

Blockade aims at smugglers

MIAMI (UPI) — The Coast Guard and other federal and local agencies have begun a maritime blockade in a crackdown on drug smugglers who apparently hijacked boats and murdered the crews.

A Coast Guard spokesman described the southeast Florida blockade from Key Largo to Fort Lauderdale as "pretty massive," but declined to disclose further details. Other sources however, said it extended from Key West to Vero Beach.

It involved 29 vessels and six aircraft and all ships and boats entering or leaving American waters along the Florida Gold Coast were being stopped and searched, the sources said.

Coast Guardsmen, customs agents, border patrolmen and Dade and Broward county sheriff's deputies were seeking one boat thought to have 5,000 pounds of marijuana aboard, manned by persons believed to be involved in several murders and hijackings.

Sources said any vessels found to be carrying contraband would be brought to Miami or Port Everglades.

A Coast Guard spokesman indicated the blockade was aimed at confiscating drugs and "any contraband in and out" of the country.

"It's pretty massive," the Coast Guard spokesman said, declining to give further details. "If I gave out anything, it would jeopardize the operation."

One source said it was the "first blockade of American waters since the Civil War."

But a warning from Wallace

Demo presidential timber

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Democrats' election triumph yielded a host of presidential prospects and a warning from one of them, Alabama Gov. George C. Wallace, that he will battle once again for his conservative constituents at the party's 1976 convention.

After he won re-election to a third term with 85 per cent of his state's vote, the paralyzed governor told a victory celebration in Birmingham the national party cannot ignore him.

"They are going to know about our political posture nationally as it's never been known," Wallace said.

He told a television interviewer that "I'm very interested in 1976" and that he believed there was room for him in the party without mounting an independent campaign for the presidency.

As Tuesday's outcome boosted the stock of several other possible contenders, Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., the acknowledged front runner for the 1976 nomination, advanced his timetable for announcing his intentions, "probably before the new Congress convenes."

Jackson saw the emergence of two new figures on the national political scene—former astronaut John H. Glenn Jr. of Ohio and the folksy, popular governor of Arkansas, Dale Bumpers. Both will join Jackson in the Senate in January.

One Democrat mentioned in 1976 speculation, Gov. John J. Gilligan of Ohio, was in serious trouble in his bid for re-election. Former Gov. James Rhodes, fighting a furious comeback battle, held a slim lead over Gilligan early Wednesday morning.

Sen. Birch Bayh, D-Ind., won re-election to a third term by an uncomfortable 51 per cent of the vote against Mayor Richard Lugar of Indianapolis, one of the toughest challengers the Republicans fielded Tuesday.

With Lugar's loss, no Republican surfaced strong enough to challenge President Ford two years from now, assuming Ford seeks election in his own right.

Among other election victors likely to play a key role at the next Democratic convention were Rep. Hugh Carey of New York, who beat Gov. Malcolm Wilson, the hand-picked Republican successor to vice presidential nominee Nelson A. Rockefeller; Gov. Reubin Askew of Florida and Sens. Adlai Stevenson III of Illinois and Ernest Hollings of South Carolina.

Sen. Lloyd Bentsen, D-Tex., known to be interested in the presidency, said Ford will be in trouble in 1976 if he pursues his same economic policies. But Jackson and Sen. Walter Mondale, D-Minn., another prospective contender that year, said the burden is on the Democrats to turn the economy around.

"I think the heat's on us now," Mondale said. "We've got to deliver."

Wins, losses of women candidates

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Only one of six women candidates running for senator or governor on major party tickets succeeded Tuesday, but female membership in the House increased and women politicians were confident of making major gains in state legislatures.

Ella Grasso, who served two terms in Congress, became the first woman ever elected governor without having succceeded a husband. The Connecticut Democrat trounced Republican Robert Steele by a 60-40 margin.

But Republicans Shirley Crumpler of Nevada and Louise Gore of Maryland were easily beaten for governor as were the three women Senate candidates running on major party tickets: Democrats Barbara Mikulski and Betty Roberts of Oregon and Republican Gwen Bush of South Carolina. The women Senate hopefuls were beaten easily by male incumbents.

All 12 women incumbents in the House were re-elected and 5 of 30 challengers were elected. Among the new congresswomen are:

—Marilyn Lloyd, a Tennessee Democrat who replaced her husband on the ballot after his death in a plane crash. She upset Rep. LaMar Baker.

—Helen Meyner, wife of former New Jersey Gov. Robert Meyner. She beat Republican Rep. Joseph Maraziti, a strong defender of former President Nixon on the House Judiciary Committee.

—Gladys Noon Spellman, a Maryland Democrat who won the Washington suburban seat previously held by Rep. Larry Hogan, who was defeated in his GOP primary bid for governor.

Among the losers was Judy Petty, an Arkansas Republican, who lost to 36-year veteran Rep. Wilbur Mills, who had to campaign hard after his involvement in a late night run-in with police at the Tidal Basin last month.

In other races:

—Mary Anne Krupsak, a Democrat, was elected lieutenant governor of New York.

—Associate Justice Susie Sharp of the North Carolina Supreme Court became the first woman elected chief justice a state's highest court.

—Beverly Harrell, a Nevada bordello operator, was elected to the state legislature.

—Jane Grey Hayes, a Democrat, clung to a narrow lead in the mayoral election in San Jose, Calif. She would be the first woman mayor of a city of more than 500,000 persons.

In addition to Lloyd, Meyner and Spellman, the other new congresswomen are Millicent Fenwick, R-N.J., and Martha Keys, D-Kan.

Brother's rifle wounds boy, 6

LA PUENTE (UPI) — Mario Wanes, 6, was in critical condition early today at Doctors Hospital after he was accidentally shot with his brother's rifle, authorities said.

Officials said the boy was playing with the rifle in the garage when his brother, 15-year-old Christopher, saw him. The rifle went off when Christopher tried to take it away.

Firemen use snorkel to foil suicide

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The San Francisco Fire Department Monday used its $110,000 "snorkel", a high-rising rescue vehicle, to prevent a youth on a ten-story scaffold from ending his life.

The would-be jumper, Richard McArthur, 21, of Las Vegas, told police "I'm tired of it all. I've got nothing to live for."

Firemen brought the snorkel next to McArthur's perch and fireman Tim Nolan, standing in the "cherry picker" tried to persuade the youth to come down. After five minutes of conversation, Nolan grabbed McArthur's wrist and pulled him onto the platform to the cheers of a downtown crowd.

McArthur was taken to San Francisco General Hospital for psychiatric examination. Fire officials said they had no record of his home address or occupation.

Election Potpourri

Lose most races

Independents did poorly nationally

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Independent James Longley, who made political history by winning the governorship of Maine, was the most successful of a handful of independent and third party candidates in Tuesday's elections.

Longley won a slim 40 per cent plurality over George Mitchell, the favored Democrat, with 37 per cent and three-time loser James Erwin, the Republican, with 23 per cent.

Longley, a 50 year-old insurance executive, promised he would run the state like a business and retain his political independence. "The hundreds which turned into thousands which turned into Longley's Legion is the real victory," he said.

Elsewhere the independents were not so successful:

—In the North Dakota Senate race, environmentalist James R. Jungroth's 3 per cent could have been the winning margin for either GOP Sen. Milton Young or former Democratic Gov. William Guy. With 98 per cent of the vote counted, Young had 49 per cent to Guy's 48 per cent.

—Democrat Richard Stone won the Florida Senate seat against Republican Jack Eckerd by one percentage point. American Party candidate John Grady's 15 per cent vote kept the outcome in doubt all the way.

—In Michigan, Zoltan Ferency's Human Rights party took only 1 per cent but complicated Democrat Sander M. Levin's second bid against GOP Gov. William Milliken who won 51 to 48 per cent.

—New York Conservative candidate Barbara Keating took 16 per cent of the Senate vote, with incumbent Republican Sen. Jacob Javits gathering 45 per cent to Democrat Ramsey Clark's 39 per cent.

Claim 8 of 12 races

Environmentals' muscle flexing

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Environmentalists who single out and try to beat a "dirty dozen" House member in each election had their best luck yet this year as eight of their 12 targets when down to defeat.

Many of the contests were close anyway and it would be difficult to discover exactly how much impact the "dirty dozen" label had in the losses; but Environmental Action, the group which coordinates the campaign, said before the election that voters were just as concerned about the issue as they were any other.

Those on the dozen list who were turned out of office by the voters in Tuesday's elections were Reps. William Hudnut, R-Ind.; John Hunt, R-N.J., Earl Landgrebe, R-Ind., Robert Mathias, R-Calif., William Scherle, R-Iowa, and Roger Zion, R-Ind.

Two others on the list —Reps. Glenn Davis, R-Wis., and Frank Stubblefield, D-Ky. —were defeated in primaries after the list was published.

In previous elections the group has done no better than to see half of the 12 go down to defeat.

State legislatures feel Demo trend, too

Democrats scored sweeping gains in state legislatures in all parts of the country Tuesday, matching their success in U.S. House and Senate races.

Preliminary returns from 38 states showed the Democrats won control from Republicans of the house, the senate or both in 12 states.

Republicans scored no gains in any of the 38 states. Only Vermont and Kansas kept GOP majorities in both houses, although New Hampshire, a Republican stronghold, had not reported.

Democrats will dominate both legislative bodies in 28 of the 38 states.

Republicans lost majorities in both the house and senate in Illinois, Iowa and Connecticut. Republicans were the majority of both bodies only in Vermont, and they lost seats there.

There are no Republicans left in the Alabama legislature. The three incumbents were defeated. Blacks, who held only two Alabama house seats in 1973, picked up 11 more Tuesday for a total of 13. Two blacks were elected to the Alabama senate.

Democrats won senate majorities in Ohio, Wisconsin and Arizona. Wisconsin has not had a Democratic senate since 1893. Democrats also control the house in the three states.

The Democrats also won house majorities in Colorado, Indiana, Maine, Pennsylvania, New York and Utah. All but Pennsylvania still have GOP control in the senate.

Even where Democratic representation was already strong, such as Maryland, Florida, West Virginia, Texas and California, the Republicans lost more seats.

The Iowa victory gave Democrats control of both houses for the first time since Lyndon Johnson's presidential landslide in 1964.

Republicans had only one vote margins in both Illinois houses before Tuesday's election. The Democrats now have firm control. One GOP casualty was House Speaker Robert Blair, who was a possible gubernatorial candidate in 1976.

Democrats increased their control of both houses Tuesday in Alabama, Arkansas, California, Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Hawaii, Kentucky, Maryland, Massachusetts, Michigan, Missouri, Nevada, New Mexico, Oregon, Rhode Island, West Virginia and Texas.

The Democrat-Farm-Labor party substantially increased its control of both houses in Minnesota.

Announced week before election

Write-in beats 20-year sheriff

FRESNO (UPI) — Criminology instructor C. Thomas Whitt scored a stunning write-in victory in the Fresno County sheriff's race today, defeating incumbent Melvin Willmirth and official challenger Guy Langley.

Whitt, who only entered as a write-in candidate one week before the election, gathered a total of 39,123 votes to 37,443 for Langley while incumbent Willmirth, who had held the post for 20 years, ran third with 33,432.

The final tabulation in the race was delayed until today because of a mixup which caused the write-in ballots in 58 of the county's precincts to be counted along with the rest of the totals Tuesday night.

Left Turn

New Congressional makeup

Demo, GOP newcomers are younger and more liberal

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A younger, greener, more energetic and more liberal Congress stands waiting in the wings. When it takes power in January, the Senate may no longer find itself less conservative than the House.

Even the GOP felt the leftward swing of Tuesday's elections. Republicans who lost re-election bids or retired tended to be the older ones. In the new 94th Congress, the GOP House membership will be younger and more liberal than that which Gerald R. Ford used to lead.

The elections tended to weed out mossbacks from both parties in the House. Nearly one member in four will be a new face, and once-dictatorial committee chairmen will have to share power —or risk losing it.

Death, retirements, resignations, losses in the primaries — plus defeats of incumbents Tuesday —brought the number of new faces in Congress to about 100 in the House and at least 11 in the Senate.

Despite all the changes and the Democratic landslide in the House, it would be inaccurate to label the new Congress " veto-proof."

Vetoes historically are over-ridden by coalitions which form and dissolve according to outside pressures Congress feels on specific issues. And there also is a tendency among Democrats, when they become numerous, to divide into warring factions.

In addition, the new Congress was voted into office in large measure on the inflation issue, and new members know a "big spender" tag could hurt two years hence.

Budget demands are so severe there will be little left for new spending, big or small, as congressmen face the problems of the '70s —food shortages, inflation, recession, the weight of petro-billions abroad, and demands for institutional reform in Congress and throughout government.

In the Senate, Democrats won or were leading in races for 24 seats and Republicans won in 10 races. Democrats were expected to hold a 62-38 advantage, again of four seats.

In the House, Democrats won 49 seats previously held by the GOP while Republicans gained six former Democratic seats. The new House would be comprised of 292 Democrats and 143 Republicans.

Pro-Nixon judiciary committee members lose

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Voters have turned out of office five House Judiciary Committee Republicans who supported Richard M. Nixon throughout most of the panel's impeachment proceedings.

Rep. Charles Wiggins of California, a Republican Judiciary Committee member, had been expected to win big in the Orange County district which includes Nixon's birthplace. But he only won by a narraw margin over a Democrat and an independent.

The five, all of whom lost Tuesday to candidates they had defeated in the past, were Reps. Wiley Mayne of Iowa, David W. Dennis of Indiana, Harold V. Froehlich of Wisconsin and Joseph Maraziti and Charles Sandman of New Jersey.

Froehlich, a freshman congressman, had been confident of victory because he supported two of the five impeachment articles voted on by the committee and thought his split on the issue might help him.

Capitol Hill Sidelights

GOP's worst loss since Goldwater's

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Democrats forged their largest House majority in Tuesday's elections since the disastrous 1964 presidential campaign of Barry M. Goldwater and the landslide could bring disaster to President Ford's legislative program in the next two years.

In the first national elections since Watergate, Democrats strengthened their iron grip on the Senate and House, building majorities that could play havoc with Ford's programs and, in some cases, nullify his veto power.

Senate GOP Leader Hugh Scott said the results "are very grim for the Republican Party."

Statistics bore him out. Democrats picked up 44 House seats, at least.

The indicated lineup for the 94th Congress convening in January showed a Democratic majority 292 to 144 in the House and 62 to 38 in the Senate.

Not since 1965, following Goldwater's defeat, has the GOP had such a small membership in the House. After that debacle, the Democrats held 295 seats.

Ford and three potential candidates for the 1976 Democratic presidential nomination —Sens. Henry M. Jackson, Walter F. Mondale, and Lloyd Bentsen —said that inflation was the key issue in the mid-term elections.

But Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, who was fired by President Richard M. Nixon as Republican National Chairman following the 1972 election and barely won re-election, said, "The wreckage of Watergate is spread over thelandscape."

Only two incumbent senators —Peter H. Dominick of Colorado and Marlow W. Cook of Kentucky, both Republicans — lost their seats.

Ford discounts defeat as a rejection of him

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford sees the congressional elections as no defeat for himself nor his policies and asks the victorious Democrats to join him in beating inflation, the chief White House spokesman said Wednesday.

"The President said to me he expects Congress to act responsibly; we will act responsibly; we will meet them half way," News Secretary Ron Nessen said. "He doesn't consider the economy to be a partison issue.

"The President is holding out a hand and saying let's work together because this problem is too important to play politics."

Nessen said there is "no gloom, no depression" in the White House.

"It wasn't a very good day for Republicans and it wasn't a very good day for Republicans he campaigned for," Nessen said. He rejected any idea the Democratic tide was a rejection of the President or his policies although Ford campaigned for 47 candidates as Vice President and following his taking office Aug. 9, barnstormed across the nation for the GOP.

"Nobody here feels yesterday's election was a vote of no confidence in the President's economic program," Nessen said.

Although Ford called inflation the No. 1 campaign issue, Nessen said that "we wouldn't disagree that it was a referendum on Watergate."

Ford stayed up until 1:30 a.m. monitoring results and telephoning congratulations to Republican survivors including governors-elect James Rhodes of Ohio and William Milliken of Michigan plus Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas.

Nessen said Mrs. Ford sat beside her husband but watched a television movie and not election results.

Qaboos bin Said wants you!

Warriors wanted: no scruples needed

By H. Peter Metzger

BOULDER, Colo. — (NEA) — A Middle Eastern government recruiting mercenaries in Colorado?

That's what a recent ad seemed to say in the Shotgun News, a Hastings, Neb., gun traders' publication that circules nationwide.

But a closer look revealed that Phoenix Associates of Arvada, which placed the ad, was offering only a $5 "information packet" by mail to prospective freelance soldiers who might want work in sunny Oman.

WANTED NOW!
MERCENARIES
Middle eastern government recruiting...
$1,000 PER MONTH
for captain... No income tax... Airfare and travel expenses refunded on arrival... free quarters and medical treatment... 60 days leave yearly... $20,000 life insurance. Information packet revealing duty, area, map, service agreement, application form, pay schedule, medical certificate... $5.00
Phoenix Associates
Dept. S-1,
Box 837, Arvada, Colo. 80002

And further checking disclosed that Phoenix Associates was just another name for soldier of fortune Capt. Robert K. Brown of Boulder.

Back in the state between wars, Brown, 41, said he placed the ad as "a method of picking up some bread to defray the expenses of my visit with American mercenaries in Rhodesia last spring."

The information packet Brown is peddling contains all you need to know about applying for service (which is illegal, by the way) in the army of the sultan of Oman, Qaboos bin Said.

The pay doesn't seem all that bad. A captain gets $1,000 a month, tax free, plus liberal leave and ration allowances and all the amenities of military life.

In Oman, a Kansas-sized country on the Arabian Peninsula, the amenities include heat to 130 degrees, as much as four inches of rain-fall in a good year, three miles of paved road between the two major cities (combined population 21,000) and a chance to fight Communists.

Oman's department of defense, which is run by British-trained officers, says in a recruiting summary that the Sultan's Armed Forces (SAF) have been fighting the Communist-backed Popular Front for the Liberation of Oman and the Arabian Gulf for the last nine years.

Some would-be adventurers who wrote for Brown's information packet were skeptical of serving in Oman.

"Actually," a man in Middle Village, N.Y., wrote, "in view of the hostile environment and arid climate, coupled with the fact that there aren't any women or bars, gambling casinos or any other place to go, a salary of $1,000 per month is pretty poor pay.

"Do you have any other employment opportunities available — something a little more lucrative, possibly in the Dark Continent or Malaysia?"

Most of Brown's customers, though, seem ready and willing to sacrifice comfort for excitement. Brown said many are former or present military men, and "Once you've been exposed to adventure, it's very difficult to fit back into humdrum civilian life. And it does offer an opportunity to go to war when the U.S. government is not officially involved in one."

One man who wrote for Brown's packet and who didn't mind his name being made public was Anthony R. Santoro, vice president of Briarcliff College in Briarcliff Manor, N.Y. He agreed with Brown on what motivates men to become mercenaries.

"This is my area of history, and historically the kings of Europe got rid of people who were out of work and of the unruly elements in society by forming mercenary units, like those in the Crusades," Santoro said.

"I would think that the people who go now are people who don't find jobs in society that interest them. They may have been doing military jobs for five years and simply don't want to unwind from it."

CAPT BROWN. Mercenary resurgence just around the corner

Why does a country like Oman want mercenaries in the first place! Santoro believes it's because they're basically apolitical — mercenaries work for whoever pays the best and don't take idiological sides in a country's internal politics.

Brown thinks a foreign officer corps is particularly desirable "because it precludes natives from rising through the ranks and establishing a power base which might threaten the sultan."

Qaboos bin Said knows all about that kind of thing. With the help of the armed forces and other members of the royal family, he seized power in a 1970 coup against his father, Said bin Taimur.

Brown needs his periodic shot of excitement himself. The holder of a master's degree in political science from the University of Colorado, he has never been involved in "peripheral revolutionary activities," as he calls them, since 1958, when he formed a pro-Castro group on campus.

Two years later, after a brief flirtation with the 26th of July Movement in Havana, he'd had enough.

"When it became apparent that Castro was turning to the left, I began assisting Cuban counter-revolutionaries by establishing training camps in Florida," Brown said. "Then I was involved as an 'observer' in the attempt to invade Haiti to overthrow Papa Doc (Duvalier) in 1966."

Later came 14 months in Vietnam with Army intelligence and as a captain in a Special Forces unit.

Brown thinks a resurgence of the mercenary trade is just around the corner.

"Opportunities for American mercs should be picking up dramatically within the next six months — and the most promising area is Africa," he said.

He said American freelanders had been effectively excluded from the Congo and other small African wars in the past because of CIA influence.

"As far as our government was concerned, if there was any adventuring to be done, it would be done by the CIA alone," he said.

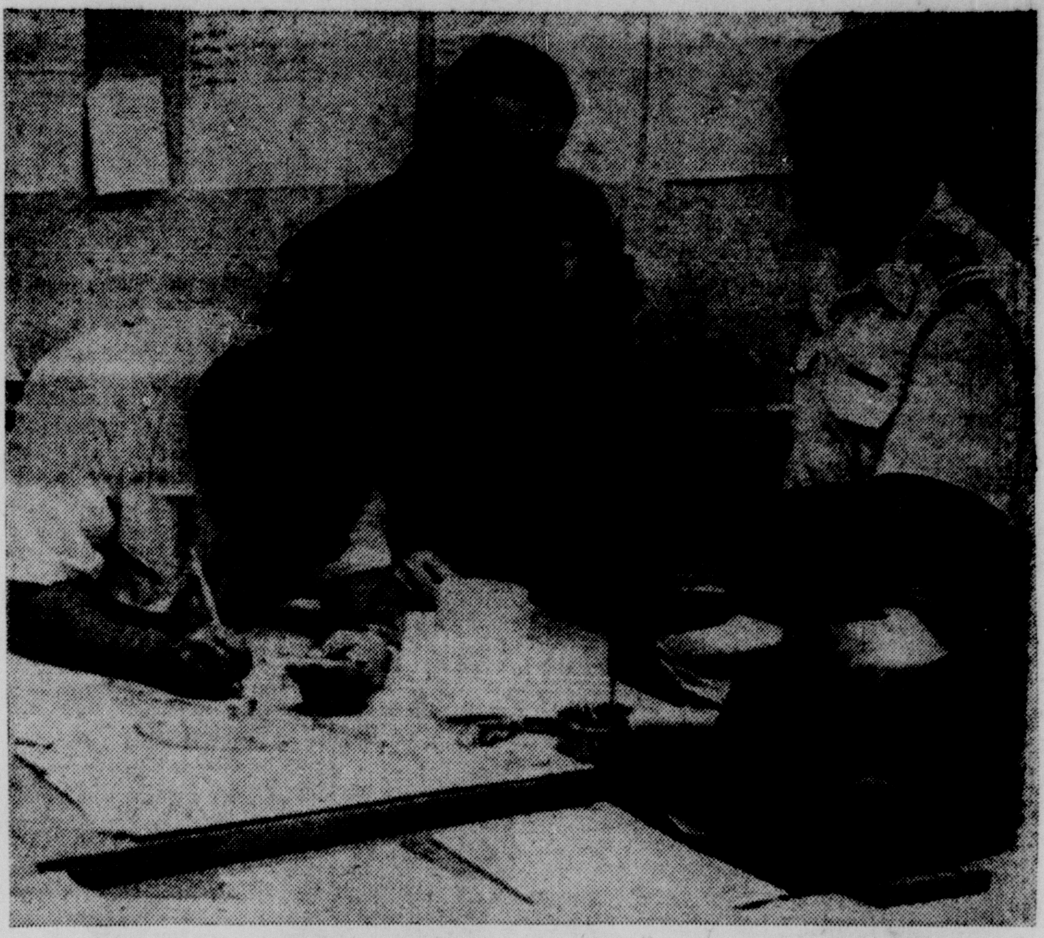
But he believes that recent congressional criticism now will cause the CIA to lie low, and the market for American mercenaries will improve. Besides Rhodesia, which already has some Americans, Brown is betting on Mozambique and Angola.

"Thanks to the war in Vietnam, the largest number of unemployed, combat-trained soldiers in the world is in the United States today," Brown said. "That's where I foresee most of the new mercenaries coming from."

Voters made him prophet

WASHINGTON (UPI) — When Richard Nixon released a taped conversation showing his early knowledge of the Watergate cover-up —Rep. Earl Landgrebe, R-Ind., declared: "I'm sticking by my President even if he and I have to be carried out of this building and be shot."

Nixon resigned the same week, and Tuesday, voters in Indiana's northeastern corner turned Landgrebe out of office.



TEAMWORK — Members of several law enforcement agencies team up with the Coast Guard at the operations center of the Miami Beach Coast Guard station during operation "Dragnet." All suspicious boats arriving in the U.S. via the southeast Florida coast were watched or stopped by 29 vessels and five aircraft.

BEFUDDLED GI — Army Sgt. Don Abbl, 22, sits in his apartment in Portland and contemplates his next move as a "solider without an outfit." A former military policeman in Germany, Abbl has been trying for the past 19 months to complete his three-year Army hitch, but can't find a unit that will accept him. In November, 1972, Abbl was granted a compassionate leave from his Army post. Since that time he has made numerous calls and visits to various Army posts, but was told he would be called if needed. He still hasn't heard from the Army and is worried about his status. Is he or isn't he AWOL? that's the question.

Citizen pays $50 to clear conscience

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — An anonymous citizen has paid $50 to clear his conscience.

County Supervisor Chairman Kenneth Hahn received an unsigned note recently with a cashier's check for $50.

The note read: "The enclosed should take care of a street sign post I knocked over some time ago in West Hollywood."

Hahn endorsed the check, which does not have the sender's name, and gave it to the county treasurer to deposit.

Prof's play jars student

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The student looked horrified when the Professor reached over to dummy and played the ace of hearts at trick one. How could that play be right?

Dummy's king of clubs hit the table next. West dropped the 10. The Professor led the jack and let it ride after East played low. The student's horrified look turned to one of awe when he saw that the Professor was going to make five club tricks instead of the four and wind up with an overtrick.

"How did you know the heart finesse would lose? Why did you play clubs so peculiarly?" the student asked.

"I didn't know about the heart finesse," was the reply. "I really didn't care. The real danger to the hand was that East would gain the lead and play a spade. I had two spade stoppers against a spade lead by West but only one against a spade lead by East. Furthermore, I didn't want to let East get in with a club if I could possibly help it. When I let the jack of clubs ride I didn't mind if it lost to the queen. I would be sure of nine tricks in any event."

NEWS IN BRIEF

Plane, police copter collide near school, but tragedy averted

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — A single engine plane and a police helicopter collided 400 feet above an elementary school playground Monday, but authorities said no one was injured and both crafts landed safely.

The helicopter and the Cessna 140 both landed safely at Municipal Airport.

Lee Owens, chief pilot of the copter, said he was searching for a suspect in an attempted rape and did not see the plane.

"I just felt the impact," Owens said. "It was like an explosion, like a 12-gauge shotgun going off in your face."

The Cessna apparently was preparing to land at the airport when the collision occurred. The plane's left wing struck the helicopter's plexiglass bubble, knocking out a large chunk. Nine inches of the plane's wing tip was sheared off.

The plane was piloted by Kirk McKuown, 25,, Van Nuys,. Both he and Owens had passengers with them, but none of the four was hurt.

The collision occurred over Magnolia Elementary School while children were playing on the grounds. Authorities said some debris fell from the plane, but no one was injured.

7th grader pulls gun, shoots his teacher

LITTLEROCK, Calif. (UPI) — A seventh-grade pupil shot his teacher when she scolded him for poor homework, sheriff's deputies said Monday.

The teacher, Alice Elliott of Pear Blossom, told investigators she was talking to the 13-year-old boy in a doorway at the Alamondale Junior High School when he pulled the gun.

The teacher, hit in the right thigh with a bullet from a .25-caliber automatic pistol, was reported in satisfactory condition at Palmdale General Hospital.

Several other teachers heard the shot and came out of their classrooms. They held the boy until deputies arrived. His name was withheld because of his age.

Smoking ban project is underway in N.Y.

NEW YORK (UPI) — Lighted cigarettes, pipes, cigarillos and cigars were banned today in all New York supermarkets and elevators, most college classrooms, and some recreational facilities.

Under the new Health Department code, not only will smoking be prohibited in certain areas, but in any classroom or lecture hall where smoking is permitted, at least 80 per cent of the seats must be reserved for nonsmokers.

The code also applies to any enclosed public space in which 50 or more people gather for religious, recreational or social purposes, except where the seating arrangements are controlled by the sponsor of the function and not the owner or the person in charge of the facility.

Van carrying 12 kids overturned when hit by bus; few injuries

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A van carrying 12 children collided with a bus and overturned Monday, but no one was seriously hurt.

Authorities said the bus driver failed to yield the right of way to the van, which was already in the intersection, when the two vehicles collided.

The children aged 4 to 10, were being driven from the Vernon Child Care Center to Windsor Hills Elementary School.

Will 'probably' run anyway, says Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Ford does not view Republican losses in Tuesday's elections as "a referendum on himself" and the outcome will not affect his decision to "probably" run for president in 1976, his chief spokesman said today.

Although Ford blamed inflation as the No. 1 campaign issue, Press Secretary Ron Nessen said that "we wouldn't disagree that it was a referendum on Watergate."

Earthquake shakes area near Altadena

ALTADENA, Calif. (UPI) — An earthquake described as "one big shock" jarred residents throughout the San Gabriel Mountains area Tuesday with a magnitude of 3.2 on the Richter Scale.

Seismologists at the California Institute of Technology in Pasadena pinpointed the epicenter of the single, sharp jolt at 4:38 p.m. in the Altadena area, about 14 miles north of the Los Angeles Civic Center.

Caltech officials said the shock originated at the base of the San Gabriel Mountains, where numerous fault lines exist.

"It was just one big shock," according to a researcher.

Woman gives birth on jetliner flight

SYDNEY, Australia (UPI) — A young woman passenger gave birth to a girl Sunday on a Qantas jetliner 27,000 feet above the Tasman Sea on a flight from Brisbane to Auckland. A doctor, a nurse and a group of medical students attended the birth.

She was attended by Dr. K. O'Reilly with help from 10 medical students and the nurse, all of whom happened to be passengers on the flight.

On arrival, mother and baby were transferred to a hospital, where both were reported well.

Poll: Rocky slight favorite in state

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Californians are divided over whether Congress should approve the nomination of Nelson Rockefeller as vice president, but sentiment is running slightly in his favor, according to the California Poll.

It reported today that 48 per cent approve the nomination of the former New York governor and multi-millionaire to the nation's number two job while 37 per cent oppose it.

Democrats favor approval 4341 while Republicans back Rockefeller's nomination by a 56-31 margin, the poll found.

College honors late Hillcrest resident

An observatory for the use of astronomy students in the physics department of Manchester College, North Manchester, Ind., was dedicated in October in memory of former teacher Dr. Charles S. Morris, who had retired to Hillcrest Homes in La Verne.

Dr. Morris had learned of the plans for the observatory prior to his death about a year ago. It was presented to the college by former students, friends and family. Mrs. Morris attended the dedication ceremony.

Dr. Morris had taught for 45 years in four of the colleges sponsored by the Church of the Brethren. Thirty-three of these were at Manchester College.

Historical group finds home for collections

The La Verne Historical Society apparently will have a place to store historical artifacts from the community in the near future. Up until now space has been limited to a donated safety deposit box at the First Federal Savings and Loan Association of San Gabriel Valley office.

An offer was extended by Dr. Glen Crago at the society's October quarterly meeting for space in an old buildling of the David and Margaret Home.

Crago is the president of an association which has the building under lease. It is being used as a research and record center for the Archeological Survey Association of Southern California.

Crago spoke to the historical society about the current project near Calico of a dig going down 70 feet through an alluvial fan to discover some clues as to the beginning of man's occupation of the area.

Crago explained that La Verne College also needed space for a collection donated to the college by J.C. Gilbert, co-discoverer of the La Brea Tar Pits. Gilbert is a former student at La Verne College.

He presented to the college a complete skeleton of a saber-tooth tiger many years ago. Dr. Robert Neher, head of La Verne College's Life Science Department, is heading the project of reassembling the skeleton of the sabertooth tiger and other collections.

La Verne College and the Archeological Survey Association, explained Crago, have an arrangement for working together without either being responsible for the others works or expenses.

The officers of the La Verne Historical Society will work out details with the archeological association and expressed hope that residents will donate more historic items now that the society has a safe place to keep them.

Inman Conety was re-elected president; Lynn Ebersole, vice president; Mrs. Russell Hanawalt, secretary; Mrs. Herman Landis, treasurer; Mrs. Paul Baum, corresponding secretary; and Mrs. Julian Montez, hospitality chairman.

Among the things recently given to the society was a record book of all the C.O.D.s on the books of the Santa Fe Railway from before the turn of the century until the station was closed. Also donated was a map which hung on the walls of the station which had been prepared by the railway at the time the settlement of Lordsburg was founded by I.W. Lord in association with the railway in 1887.

These were on display at the historical society's October meeting. They were given [illegible]

Newsprint price hike

OLD GREENWICH, Conn. (UPI) — Bowater Paper Sales Co. has announced a $35 increase in the price of newsprint effective Jan. 1.

The Bowater hike will push the price of 30-pound newsprint to $270 a ton in 1975.

Most other major companies have announced price raises for 30-pound newsprint of $25 to around $260 a ton effective Jan. 1.

President B.R. Pryde said Bowater Paper Sales had delayed announcing its increase until its four mills in North America had completed their manufacturing cost estimates for 1975. He said these calculations pointed to a manufacturing cost increase of at least $15 a ton.

If the Bowater boost is followed by the rest of the industry that would raise the price $80 a ton since last January. Paper trade circles in Canada were talking last month about the possibility of $300 a ton newsprint by next spring.

Insights on campus today

A friend of mine from the Midwest was telling me recently of the roles that his mother and father had played in his early life.

He said that his mother had always been quick to point out that she made all the business decisions in their family because, after all, she had "graduated" and his father had not.

My friend was a teen-ager before he came to realize that his mother had indeed "graduated" from an 8 grade, one-room country school, while his father had left much earlier to help on the farm.

And that was not really an unusual circumstance shortly after the turn of the century in rural America. Precious few ever had the opportunity to consider the question of college.

World War I and then the Great Depression changed the plans of many, but the comparative few who could scrape up the money understood that you went to college to "get ahead."

Then came World War II and the G.I. Bill, followed closely by federally funded education and the question of whether to go to college became pertinent to an ever increasing segment of our youthful population.

The Readers Digest pointed out some twenty-five years ago that college graduates would earn an additional $50,000.00 during their lifetime.

Blacks, Chicanos and other minorities began to see college as the obvious way to increase their mobility into middle-class America.

As the government came even closer to its goal of providing equal access to education for all, kids from poor families came to realize that they had a better chance of getting into the college of their choice than those with upper middle-class incomes.

For some, the answer to why go to college? has become the same as why climb the mountain? That answer is . . . because it's there.

But from most young people today, I detect new attitudes, new perception and a new sensitivity. They are taking the practical approach. They feel that college education should be geared toward a saleable skill which will allow them to make an adequate living.

They are disenchanted with the world of work which requires many people to perform boring, uninteresting and sometimes even destructive jobs for this purpose.

Thus, these are four reasons for going to college — any college.

The first one is to search for the answer to the question: Who am I?

The second is to consider: What is the nature and meaning of man and the universe?

The third to determine: What will be my role in it all? (The key criterion for success in the achievement of education is whether one knows one's self and his potentialities and what one does out in the world with his possibilities, options and issues.)

The fourth is to prepare one's self to find his place in the world and use his talents and potentials in a productive way to achieve a better world for mankind while, at the same time, fulfilling his own needs for self-realization and dignified individuality.

At 90, prison inmate looks back on 50 years of trouble with law

HUNTSVILLE, Tex. (UPI) — Nelson Mitchell's body has been punctured three times by bullets, he has been arrested 42 times and is serving his fifth term in the Texas State Penitentiary for assault to murder.

His convict friends call him "Big Track" because he wears size 13 shoes. Officers call him "Nine Lives."

"I just don't like people messin' with me," Mitchell said of his previous trouble with the law.

But if he was tough on the outside, he is a model prisoner on the inside. Warden Harry Husbands gave Mitchell a cake on his birthday this year and he just about has the run of the place.

"Nine Lives" is 90 years old.

He is serving four years for a shootout with a Fort Worth policeman who tried to interfere in an argument Mitchell was having with a friend in 1973. He was 89 at the time, and was shot three times.

"I recovered from the wounds to stand trial and it was then that officers gave me the other nickname —"Nine Lives," he said.

Mitchell is six feet, three inches tall, weighs 165 and with broad shoulders and erect bearing could pass for between 50 and 60.

Close cropped gray hair helps his youthful image.

He takes care of the trees and flowers in the prison yard and is selling programs at the prison rodeo every Sunday in October.

Mitchell pointed with pride to a tall pecan tree in the prison yard. "I planted that just 50 years ago," he said.

Although Mitchell talks freely about his 42 arrests and prison terms going back half a century, he said, "I am not a thief and I am a good, steady worker. I can do a better job than most youngsters I have seen both in and out of prison."

He said he has seen the Texas prison system go from the worst to the best.

"The food is good, we get good treatment and prison employes are very helpful," Mitchell said. "What's more, if you do what is expected, you should have no trouble."

Mitchell said he can remember as a younger man picking 1,000 pounds of cotton a day on the prison's Ramsey Farm.

"In those days, if you didn't pick that much, you weren't there the next day," he said.

Mitchell said his mother died Dec. 25, 1969, at the age of 107. Many members of his family lived to an old age, he said, and he has a 60-year-old son and a 65-year-old daughter.

Having long-lived ancestors helps, but Mitchell attributes part of his longevity to this formula: "Keep busy because it will keep you young and healthy."

Keeping busy has been no problem for him. On the outside he was a laborer and in prison work goes along with the bars.

What is there for a man of 90 to look forward to in prison?

"Why, a parole," Mitchell said. He is eligible next year.

Second runway given approval

RIVERSIDE (UPI) — The City Council received approval of an environmental impact report that indicated a second major east-west runway at Riverside Municipal Airport would have no adverse effects on the area.

Cost of the new runway was estimated at $1.1 million, including the acquisition of 35 additional acres of land adjoining the present airport property.

Ask Dr. Brothers

Make marriage work

By DR. JOYCE BROTHERS

DEAR DR. BROTHERS: My husband and I got married last year. Our friends think of us as the "perfect couple," I guess, because we are so much alike in so many ways. We went to the same college and even come from the same state, but I'm concerned because I think we're growing apart. My husband is continuing his studies and is away most of the time stuck in the library or in classes. I have to admit I sometimes get bored and I think maybe he does, too. — B. R.

Dear B. R.: If a woman allows herself to retire from life and remains in the home while her husband is out in the world finding stimulation from many sources, they may grow further and further apart as the man is continuing to enlarge his mind and his world. The woman, on the other hand, is drawing a circle around herself and her interests, and her world is, therefore, diminishing.

This is not a new problem. It has been discussed by men and women for years. Someone once observed that "Washington is full of famous men and the women they married when they were young." We can assume from this comment that these women had ceased to grow along with their husbands. Certainly, it is much easier for women to remain in contact with excitement of the outside world today than it was in the past.

The best treatment for such a situation is prevention! Of course, circumstances are bound to affect a marriage. As people grow older their interests change. But the interests of a couple are more apt to change in harmony if both keep themselves occupied and revive old interests as they add new and different ones to their lives.

You have much going in your favor, for statistics show that while opposite may attract, if they are too opposite, they're less likely to enjoy a happy marriage. Similarities of age, education, race, cultural traditions and economic status all add to the chances of a happy marriage. Although there are always exceptions, the odds are heavily weighted against the aging, wealthy dowager who marries the poor, but handsome, young truck driver, or the older statesman who runs off with a charming, but uneducated, young girl. These situations usually make better movies than marriages.

The fact that your backgrounds are similar should work in your favor but, of course, what you do or how you spend your day — today, tomorrow, and the next day — will be part of your future background. If your husband is still studying and learning, it might be good for you to find time to do the same so you can keep your backgrounds similar. You don't have to occupy yourself with the same subject, certainly, but don't stop learning.

It takes time, interest and energy to make any marriage work, and sometimes this is especially difficult when a young husband is still in school preparing for his profession. The first year of any marriage is the most difficult, for you are still adjusting to each other and the honeymoon aura is probably beginning to wear off.

Since you did not mentioin children, I assume you have not, as yet, started a family. You may have a great deal of time on your hands, and since you admit to being bored, you may not be using that time to advantage.

Chances are that if you take a course yourself, or find some new, absorbing interest, neither you nor your husband will be bored. The best way to counteract what is tending to push you apart is to cultivate and enlarge what you can share, add new common interests to your old ones, and take up new projects together.

Juniors aid children

Three members of the Walnut Junior Woman's Club, Mrs. Robert Burke, Mrs. Dave Olson and Mrs. Robert Hansen, will entertain 40 children at Mac Laren Hall on Sunday by joining them in games and serving refreshments.

Mrs. Dave Espinoza, project chairman, states that games for the children are held on the second Sunday of each month. Small games prizes are given to the winners and the club needs such items for youngsters from five through teen-age.

O.C. SMITH

GENE REDDING

Stars to perform at football game

Popular recording artists O.C. Smith and Gene Redding will appear in a program of pre-game entertainment at the first annual Gold Rush Classic football game Friday night at the Los Angeles Coliseum.

The contest will pit the Southern University Jaguars against the Cal State Los Angeles Diablos at 7 p.m. The event will mark the first time the teams have met in an athletic competition.

Smith, a Southern University alumnus, will sing the national anthem. Redding is known for his funky soul-rock sound and has achieved success with his recent album release, "Blood Brother." The music is scheduled to begin at 6 p.m., one hour before the game.

Baseball star Lou Brock of the St. Louis Cardinals will make a guest appearance during the festivities.

The Southern University Marching Band will be featured during the half-time entertainment. The band has a reputation for being among the most exciting of its kind. Dr. Issac Hayes, has been director since 1969. In addition to accompanying such musicians as Lionel Hampton, Al Hirt, Doc Severinson and Pete Fountain, the band has made guest appearances throughout the nation, from Houston's Astrodome to New York's Yankee Stadium. In addition, the Southern University band has danced and played pro football's Super Bowl.

The band is accompanied by the Dancing Dolls, a group of women who perform special numbers.

MAC DAVIS, pop music recording star, will perform at the Anaheim Convention Center at 8:30 p.m. Nov. 15. Davis, also a composer, has had his songs recorded by Elvis Presley, Andy Williams, Vikki Carr, Ray Price and others.

Miller drama to be staged at Citrus

The Citrus College Theater Arts Department will present Arthur Miller's "The Crucible" in the college auditorium at 8 o'clock tonight, Friday and Saturday.

Tickets are $1.50 general, $1 for students. Information can be obtained at (213) 335-6116.

Miller's drama retells the story of the witchcraft trials and hangings in Salem, Mass. in 1692. First produced in 1953, the play was regarded as a parallel to the McCarthyism of the period, but Miller insisted "The Crucible" was an accurate account of the witch trials that sent 19 men and women to the gallows. Miller drew his story from the letters, trial records and other papers in the Salem archives, and he says the characters in the drama played similar true-life roles.

Robert Alsterberg plays the colonial farmer whose stubborn demand for justice arouses the hostility of the bigoted persecutors. Deborah Gallagher is the farmer's wife who is irresponsibly accused of witchcraft. Her accuser is played by Yvonne Daugird.

Others in the cast are Cliff Davidson, Larry Brooks, Holly Farrell, Chuck Thurman, Dianne D-Abreau, Linda Daniel, Sandra Schiele, Robert Dunlop, Carolyn Ullrich, Jerry Jered, Chris Anderson, Judy Rabinowitz, Deborah Thoreson, George Walters, Tom Densham, Boyd Smith and Melissa Tatalovich.

"The Crucible" is directed by faculuty members Frederic Carlson and Jacqueline O'Rourke. Bonnie Lindsley is stage manager, and Mike Lewis planned the lighting and sound.

New record for treading water

ALFRED, N.Y. (UPI) — Robert Olislagers dived into a pool Saturday and then climbed back out —35 hours later.

The feat earned the Alfred College sophomore from the Netherlands a new world record for treading water. The current record listed in the Guinness Book of World Records is 32 hours.

Olislagars said he wrote the Guinness editors and followed their rules of not leaving the pool and not touching the sides or bottom of the pool during his session of treading water.

Olislagars is a member of the Alfred, N.Y., school's swimming and water polo teams and was goalie on the Dutch National junior water polo squad last year.

Chorale to perform

The Los Angeles Master Chorale and Sinfonia Orchestra, conducted by Roger Wagner, will open its season with a concert in the Pavilion of the Los Angeles Music Center at 8:30 p.m. Saturday.

The program includes the Faure "Requiem," Brahms' "Schicksalslied," "Autumn" by Vivaldi and a suite from Copland's "The Tender Land." Soloists will be Mary Rawcliffe and Harold Enns.

The 100-voice chorale recently returned from a successful concert tour of the Soviet Union.

Young Artist Series

Webster presents clarinet recital

By RALPH PIERCE

A small audience turned out in Garrison Theater Tuesday night for the first concert in the new Young Concert Artist Series being offered this year by the Claremont Colleges. If those who chose to stay home thought the "Young Artists" would be less interesting, their decision was wrong and they were the losers.

Clarinetist Michael Webster and pianist Diane Walsh presented a varied and interesting program of chamber music for the clarinet and piano including the Brahms Sonata in E flat, the Debussy "Rhapsodie," a Mendelssohn Allegro Brilliante and some interesting contemporary works. Of special interest was the Evolutions for Clarinet and Piano by Richard Felciano and a group of Five Pieces for Solo Clarinet by Webster.

A great deal of credit for the evening of beautiful music making should go to the young and very proficient and musical pianist, Miss Walsh. It is all too seldom that we have opportunity to hear chamber music playing of this calibre. Both in the technically demanding virtuoso passages and in the quiet, introspective ones, her playing complemented that of the clarinetist. It was music making in its highest form.

The program closed with the beautiful and melodic Fantasy Pieces, Op. 73 by Schumann, and everyone in the audience went home with the conviction that they had heard two young artists both destined to a rewarding future.

The three remaining concerts in the series will present a pianist, Emanuel Ax; a violist, Nobuko Imai, and violinist Ani Kavafian. Each of the young artists spends a couple of days on the campus visiting with the music students during their visit for the performance. The idea of presenting some of the outstanding young artists coming up seems like a good one and we can only hope that larger audiences will turn out for the future events.

Hitler won cross

Adolf Hitler received the Iron Cross for bravery while fighting in the Bavarian army during World War I.

SPEBSQSA TO AUDITION

The Park Avenue Four, shown at left, is one of the quartets of the Pomona Valley chapter of the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of Barber Shop Quartet Singing in America that will perform at the Montclair Plaza from 7:30 to 9 tonight and Friday.

Also performing will be SPEBSQSA's Carousel Chorus, directed by Carl Walters. Admission is free.

Marco Polo was an adventurer who became famous for his travels in China almost 700 years ago. Marco Polo was born in Venice, Italy. He began his incredible journey overland to Asia when he was only 17 years old and was one of the first Europeans to see the many wonders of China.

When Marco Polo returned home from China 24 years later, his friends could scarcely believe him when he told of vast Oriental cities, of magnificient buildings and of paved streets.

He told of a kind of black rock that the Chinese burned as fuel. The black rock, of course, was coal.

He told, too, of money made of paper, which was much easier to carry than heavy coins.

Marco Polo wrote a book about these things and of the many other strange and fascinating sights and things he saw.

Group of dissident doctors not yet ready to split AMA

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (UPI) — The president of a national association of doctors employed by hospitals says the group is not yet strong enough to declare itself a nationwide doctors' union, possibly at odds with the American Medical Association.

Delegates to the third annual conventionof the Physicians National Housestaff Association voted to keep, at least temporarily, their ties with the American Medical Association. However, the association left the implied warning that it will break with the AMA if it does not endorse PNHA goals.

The 10,000-member PNHA has proposed a model national contract for hospital-employed doctors that would provide a maximum 15-hour work shift, 80-hour work week, no firings without full hearings and guarantees that hospitals will follow existing standards for patient care.

Dr. Robert Harmon, the new PNHA president, said, "It's by this method of collective bargaining that young physicians are taking a unique position. It is not a union for the self-interest of its members. The condition of the patients cannot be separated."

The association has charged that through lack of funding and poor administration many large hospitals violate rules for maintaining proper equipment, trained nurses and other personnel, hygiene and laboratory facilities.

Of the convention decision, Harmon said, "After a lot of debate it was decided that we should continue to communicate, we should not close the door yet."

He added, "We have made our stand clear to the AMA and it's up to them to respond to our position," he said. "If the AMA continues to be unresponsive to our initiatives, it would put the communications that have been set up in serious jeopardy and we would be proceeding in our own direction."

Draft evaders warned about Ford deadline

FRESNO (UPI) — A spokesman for the U.S. attorney's office is warning that draft resisters have only until Jan. 31 to take advantage of President Ford's amnesty offer.

Anthony P. Capozzi, an assistant U.S. attorney, said Wednesday that only two persons have surrendered in the Fresno area.

He added that more than 100 draft resister cases were open in the area and that his office was trying to send letters notifying those involved of the deadline.

"After the deadline, these people can be prosecuted, which means they will have criminal records the rest of their lives," he noted.

WORLD ALMANAC FACTS

OPIUM POPPY

The first Opium War began in 1839 after a group of Chinese destroyed opium supplies belonging to British merchants in Canton to protest the import of opium into China, The World Almanac recalls. The war ended with the Treaty of Nanking in 1842 which ceded Hong Kong to the British and forced the Chinese to open several ports to British trade. Shortly thereafter, treaty privileges were extended to other Western powers.

Canadian jobless rate dips

OTTAWA (UPI) — Unemployment in Canada dropped four-tenths of a per cent in October to 5.4 per cent, Statistics Canada reported.

The decline in seasonally adjusted unemployment was the first in four months of steady increases.

Employment was up in all provinces except Nova Scotia and British Columbia.

Nationally, unemployment dropped in October from 5.8 to 5.4 per cent. It declined in all provinces except British Columbia where the number of jobless increased to 6.7 per cent from 6.5.

Statistics Canada releases cost of living figures on Thursday and if they show inflation is increasing at a lower rate, Finance Minister John Turner may be able to deem the Canadian economy in a healthy state when he presents his budget Nov. 18.

The opposition was not expected to be too critical of the government as a result of the latest labor force statistics since they showed a surprising downward trend in unemployment.

Pomona-Pitzer quarterback Larry Cenotto, shown running for yardage against La Verne, is looking forward to Saturday afternoon's cross-campus battle against Claremont-Mudd.

Sun sets in Hawaii

HONOLULU (UPI) — Randy Johnson passed for two touchdowns Wednesday night to lead the playoff-hungry Hawaiians to a 29-8 victory over the Southern California Sun in a World Football League game.

Johnson, who passed for over 300 yards to win Player of the Week honors two weeks ago, hit John Isenbarger on scoring passes of four and 17 yards. Running backs Al Davis and Vin Clements ran for the other two scores to give the Hawaiians a 29-0 lead before the Western Division champions could get on the scoreboard.

Kermit Johnson, the Suns' leading rusher, ran over from 16 yards out midway through the final period for Southern Cal's only score.

The Hawaiians' defense limited the WFL's leading passer, Tony Adams, to only 6-of-19 passes for 84 yards and sacked him four times for 36 yards in losses. They also intercepted one of his passes.

Johnson connected on 17-of-32 attempts for 290 yards. Two were intercepted.

Southern California, without the services of Jim McAlister, its leading pass receiver, managed 116 yards rushing and 129 yards passing. The Hawaiians, meanwhile, had a total of 344 yards in total offense.

Kermit Johnson was the leading ground gainer with 84 yards on 18 carries.

The Hawaiians, still in line for a playoff spot, saw their record improve to 8-11. The Sun, which has already clinched the Western title, dropped to 13-6.

The Charlotte Hornets lost more than the game Wednesday night. They also lost their uniforms to a court order.

All Charlotte equipment and uniforms were seized after the Shreveport Steamer's 19-14 victory in lieu of payment to a cleaning shop and a security firm that claimed the team owed them $26,000 for services provided while the club was the New York Stars.

The World Football League franchise was moved from New York to Charlotte a month ago.

Two Caddo Parish sheriff's deputies stood guard outside the Hornets' locker room to make certain the equipment stayed inside. After the players left, the room was locked for the night.

Attorneys planned to meet today in an attempt to reach a settlement. Seizure of the uniforms was the latest event indicating the financial problems of the WFL.

Jim Nance scored on a one-yard run in the fourth quarter to lift the Steamer over Charlotte. Nance's run at the end of a 74-yard, 14-play drive put Shreveport ahead for the first time in the second half.

Doug Winslow had scored for the Steamer on a six-yard pass from D.C. Nobles in the third quarter and Charlie Durkee kicked a 27-yard field goal. Mike Walker helped preserve the win by recovering a fumble on the Shreveport 28 with 32 seconds left.

Gary Danielson's 16-yard pass to Kreg Kapitan and Don Highsmith's two-yard run accounted for the Hornet scores.

Shreveport pushed its record to 7-11-1 while Charlotte, already assured of a playoff berth, dropped to 10-9.

In other WFL action, the Birmingham Americans beat the Philadelphia Bell 26-23. Portland is at Florida and Chicago at Memphis tonight.

Americans 26, Bell 23

Matthew Reed engineered four first half scoring drives as Birmingham jumped into a 26-0 halftime lead and then held on to beat the Bell. John Land's two-yard run, a 20-yard pass from King Corcoran to Land and Corcoran's one-yard TD flip to Claude Watts rallied the Bell. Art Cantrelle's 22-yard run, Reed's 37-yard TD pass to Alfred Jenkins and Paul Robinson's 14-yard run sparked the Americans' first half burst.

Billy Martin A.L. Manager of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Battling" Billy Martin of the Texas Rangers, who took what many labled "the worst team in baseball" to within five games of the world champion Oakland Athtelics in their division, today was named by United Press International as the 1974 American League Manager of the Year.

Martin, whose Rangers finished with an 84-76 record — five games behind the A's in the AL West, edged Bill Virdon of the New York Yankees by one vote in UPI's cross-coutnry survey of its baseball correspondents.

Prior to taking over the Rangers near the end of the 1973 season, Martin acknowleged his team was considered by many to be "the worst in baseball" and that his first priority would be "to change that attitude."

That he did —as was witnessed by the Rangers' remarkable turnaround in '74. The 1973 club had finished last in the AL west with a 57-105 record, 37 games behind the champion A's.

Of course, Martin had some help —via a transfusion of some new players —in making Texas a winner. For one, the Rangers acquired righthander Ferguson Jenkins from the Cubs during the off-season and he proceeded to win 25 games in '74 to tie the A's Jim Hunter as the winningest pitcher in baseball.

Martin also promoted two farmhands —Jim Sundberg and Mike Hargrove —who played big roles in the 1974 Rangers' season. Sundberg gave the Rangers' their first steady catcher in years, batting a respectable (for today's standards) .247, while Hargrove batted .323 and is a shoo-in for American League rookie of the year honors.

"I saw both Hargrove and Sundberg in the Florida instructional league last winter," Martin said, "and I knew I wanted them on the big club. Needless to say, they both lived up to my expectations."

Martin was also instrumental in the acquisition of Jenkins, who was coming off a subpar season for the Cubs after a string of 20-win seasons. "They told me his arm was sound and that's all I wanted to know," Martin said. "We had to give up a good prospect in (third baseman) Bill Madlock, but I'd say it was worth it."

Besides Jenkins, Hargrove and Sundberg, Martin also coaxed "career high" performances out of many other Rangers in '74.

Rightfielder Jeff Burroughs, a leading candidate for Most Valuable Player honors, batted .301 with 25 homers and a league-leading 118 runs-batted-in; third baseman Lennie Randle, a .205 hitter in parts of two major league seasons, batted .302; centerfielder Cesar Tovar, a .265 hitter for the past two seasons, batted .292.

Martin also got 19 victories from second-year man Jim Bibby and brought sore-armed righthander Steve Hargan back from the minors only to have him win 12 games.

Virdon, the only other manager to seriously challenge Martin in the balloting, took over the Yankees as the "second choice" of the New York management after Dick Williams was forced to turn the job down, and led the club to second place in the AL East, two games behind Baltimore. A disappointing also-ran under Ralph Houk in '73, Virdon had the Yankees in contention down to the next-to-last day of the '74 season.

Stags vs. Sagehens

Cenotto eyes biggest game

By DON BRADLEY
P-B Staff Writer

The biggest game of the year is coming up Saturday for Pomona-Pitzer quarterback Larry Cenotto.

The Sagehens have not beaten their cross-campus rivals Claremont-Mudd in Cenotto's previous three years at Pomona College. Last year the Stags won by a 35-7 score.

"That's all I've been thinking about for 365 days," Cenotto said Wednesday. "Last year I got knocked out in the second half of the game. It was a close game to that time, but Claremont-Mudd went on to win handily."

The score was 14-7 when Cenotto was hurt last year. It happened just 5:45 into the second half. The score had been knotted 7-7 at halftime.

Going into the game last year, the Sagehens were 1-3-1 and the Stags had a 2-2 record. Both teams have been struggling this year.

Pomona-Pitzer is winless in six games while Claremont-Mudd has one win in five games. Each has three games left.

"Frankly I'm looking forward to playing Claremont-Mudd most of all," said Cenotto. "I think we can and should beat them. For the seniors, it's our last chance. For me it's a personal thing."

Why does Cenotto think the Sagehens can beat the Stags?

"Execution is the coach's favorite word," Cenotto answered. "It's overworked, but it's true. Getting the people to do the job. If we had equal personnel, I think we could move the ball on many major colleges with the type of offense we have. It's a matter of having the bodies around and the execution."

In his games for Pomona-Pitzer, Cenotto has NOT had the bodies around. Much of his time is spent running away from the clutches of would-be tacklers as soon as the ball is snapped.

Despite this, he has become the schools' all-time leader in total offense with a career mark of 5,006 yards.

"I came here from a high school (Jackson) that had a three yards and a cloud of dust offense," Cenotto recalled. "It was a thrill just to throw the ball. I made a lot of mistakes in my freshman year, so I haven't thought anything about records. I've just tried to improve every year. But the record has given me a great deal of satisfaction, no doubt about it."

However, the season itself has not been a source of joy.

"When I was a sophomore," Cenotto said, "I had a good season. I thought to myself, how could I possibly do as well as a junior? But I did and so I was really looking forward to this year.

"But I've had a problem with interceptions (15), reading defenses and double coverage of my receivers. Also, I've had a lot of balls dropped or I think I'd have 1½ times as many completions as I have now."

Cenotto is still the leading passer in the conference with 92 of 196 passes completed for 1,216 yards and nine touchdowns. His closest competitor, Chuck Hiroto of Redlands has completed 35 of 78 passes for 447 yards.

Playing for a team that is at or near the bottom defensively (allowing an average of 417 yards a game) has not gotten Cenotto down. When asked how he manages to come back for more after taking a physical beating every week as well as coming out second best, he simply smiles and quotes an article he read about Joe Namath of the New York Jets.

"Pride is an individual thing. I'm not ashamed. You just do as well as you can. Nobody can expect any more of you."

Cenotto has developed into a fine quarterback because he is gutty and durable aside from having a powerful throwing arm. After losing to La Verne, a game in which he was sacked seven times, Cenotto went over to talk with Leo coach Roland Ortmayer after the game.

"I'd like to have your line and play you again sometime," Cenotto told Ortmayer, "and then see what happens."

Now he has just three games left at Pomona College.

"I think we have a chance to win all three," he said without hesitation. "It makes a difference playing Claremont because there's a personal but friendly rivalry. I know a lot of the players, was with them in a summer passing league and we got along real well.

"The fans around here don't get excited very often and when they do it's something special. The students are getting excited for this game and therefore it makes us a little more excited."

Southern, Cal State L.A. clash Friday at Coliseum

LOS ANGELES — Southern University of Baton Rouge, La. (6-2) "hosts" Cal State Los Angeles (4-1-1) Friday night at the Coliseum in the Gold Rush Classic. It will mark the first appearance for the Jaguars in Los Angeles and CSLA's initial game in the Coliseum.

Southern warmed up for the Diablo tiff by whipping Nebraska-Omaha Saturday night, leaving seven regulars at home and utilizing mostly third and fourth string players. Henry Green paced the 21-7 victory gaining 91 yards on just nine carries.

Meanwhile CSLA suffered its first setback of the season dropping a hard-fought 25-22 verdict at UC Riverside. Quarterback Rick Holoubek paced a late Diablo comeback leading to all 22 points in the final stanza, only to have UCR's Frank Jordan boot a 23-yard field goal in the final five seconds.

"This game means a lot to us," said Southern coach Charlie Bates. "We are hoping to get a bid to the Grantland Rice or Pelican Bowl and a win Friday night would go a long way for us"

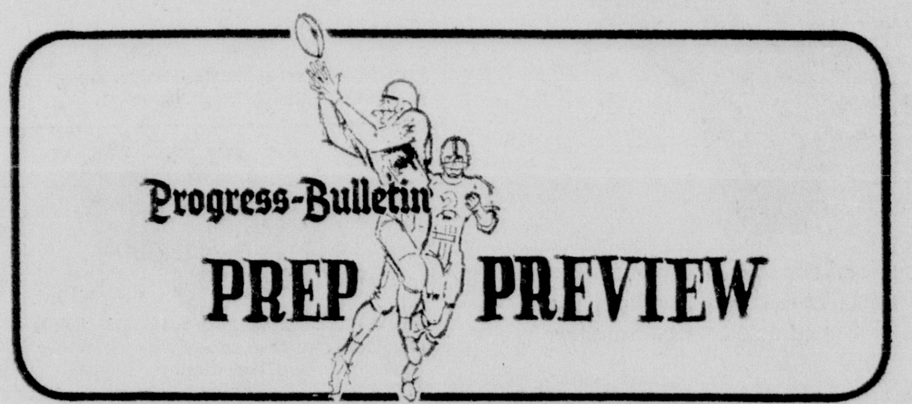
Cal State has undergone a football resurgence with the re-hiring of Jim (Red) Williams as head coach. Joining Williams on the coaching staff is Homer Beatty, whose Diablo teams were 25-2 from 1963-65.

"The thing we have going for us is that we have an outstanding, skilled quarterback in Rick Holoubek," said Williams. "Two of our receivers, Billy Derrick and Doug Hopper could be starters in the PAC-8."

Holoubek has fired 12 touchdown passes while completing 72 of 148, while Derrick has grabbed 20 for 352 yards and Hopper 17 for 352 and six scores.

Southern is the first predominantly black school to utilize the Wishbone offense and junior quarterback James Johnson is the man who makes them go. He has fired six TD passes.

Pregame activities, featuring singer Gene Redding, start at 6 p.m. with kickoff at 7:30. Southern alumns Lou Brock, base-stealing wizard for the St. Louis Cards, and Ram linebacker Isiah Robertson will be honored at halftime as the dazzling 175 piece Southern University marching band entertains.



Pacific at Chaffey, 7:30 p.m.

It's strictly a matter of pride, but Chaffey High would very much like to beat Pacific tonight in a Citrus Belt League contest slated for Graber Field and a 7:30 p.m. kickoff.

Chaffey carries a 1-2 league record into the fray while Pacific is 0-3. However, the Tigers put it together to upset San Gorgonio last week and hope to continue their winning ways against another San Bernardino school, Pacific, tonight.

While both teams have had offensive problems in league, Chaffey has shown a stout defense and that unit may well be the difference in the contest.

CSDR vs. Lutheran at Pomona, 7:30 p.m.

The Trojans of La Verne still have a chance at a winning record in the Arrowhead League, but they have to beat CSDR of Riverside tonight to do it.

Gametime is slated for 7:30 p.m. and the contest will be played at the Pomona College field.

Lutheran is going against a tough defensive team in CSDR and the game figures to be a low-scoring affair. The Trojans also could be hurting if star tailback Don Liles is not able to play. Liles sustained an injury last week in Lutheran's loss to Aquinas.

Cavaliers off to best start

By United Press International

Bobby Smith was the open man on Cleveland's fast break Wednesday night and the result was a career high 41 points and a National Basketball Association victory for the Cavaliers.

Cleveland, off to its finest start in its five year history, used 21 first half points by Smith and eight more in the final two minutes of play to register a 107-99 triumph over the Washington Bullets.

Cleveland, which needed 21 games a year ago before winning its sixth, is now 6-4, while Washington dropped 8-2 and leads the Cavaliers by two games in the Central Division race.

"All I have to do is box my man and keep him off the boards," explained Smith, a 6-foot 6 forward. "Then I'm off on the break. I know Dwight (Davis) and Jim (Chones) are going to get the ball off the boards."

The Cavaliers used that combination to outscore the Bullets 33-18 in the first period. Smith tossed in 13 points and teammate Austin Carr 12 as Cleveland shot a lofty 16 per cent for the period, making 14 of 22 shots.

The Detroit Pistons defeated the Kansas City-Omaha Kings 118-104, the Philadelphia 76ers beat the Chicago Bulls 105-90, the Boston Celtics downed the Portland Trailblazers 128-110, and the Buffalo Braves toped the New Orleans Jazz 110-98, in other games.

Smith was continually open against Washington, scoring eight points in the second period as Cleveland increased its lead to 58-36. He had eight more in the third and 12 in the final period which helped the Cavaliers offset an effective second half full court press by the Bullets.

Pistons 118, Kansas City 104

The Pistons sank nine of their first 10 shots and were never threatened in their victory over the Kings. Dave Bing scored 30 points and Bob Lanier had 27 for the winners while Jimmy Walker and Nate Williams each scored 17 for the Kings.

76ers 105 Bulls 90

Fred Carter scored 31 points for the 76ers in their victory over the Bulls. The 76ers twice led by 28 points in the third period and coasted to their fourth victory in nine games.

Celtics 128, Trailblazers 110

John Havlicek scored 40 points and Paul Westphal hit on seven of eight attempts from the floor to lead the Celtics to their victory. Bill Walton, who seemed to tire of the pace the Celtics set, scored only 12 points for the Trailblazers.

Braves 110, Jazz 98

Bob McAdoo scored 41 points for the Braves, including 14 in a crucial third period. The win gave the Braves a 6-3 record while the Jazz suffered its 10th defeat.

Falcons prime for 'outburst' claims Knox

LONG BEACH, Calif. (UPI) — Los Angeles hosts the Atlanta Falcons Sunday but Ram coach Chuck Knox isn't expecting to see the same team that has stumbled to a 2-6 record.

Knox says the Falcons are prime for an "emotional outburst" because of Marion Campbell taking over the team as head coach from the fired Norm Van Brocklin.

Campbell was a defensive coach with Atlanta before the change Tuesday.

"Anytime a coach who is unpopular with the players leaves and another coach who is popular with them takes over, it's bound to have a good effect on your team morale," Knox said Wednesday.

"The Falcons were 9-5 last year and they've got most of the same players."

Knox, whose Rams are still under the gun from critics despite their 6-2 NFC West Division-leading mark, denied again the team was playing too conservatively.

"I don't think we're a conservative team at all," Knox replied. "Oakland only attempted 11 passes when they beat San Francisco 34-24 and nobody is calling them conservative.

"Scoring is down all over the league. I think NFL games are still exciting. Fifty-two per cent of the games this season have been decided by seven points or less. There's greater balance in the NFL than ever before."

Reserve safety Bill Drake will undergo surgery for torn knee cartilage Thursday and will be lost to the Rams for the rest of the season.

Drake, a second-year pro from Oregon, injured the knee in the Rams' 15-13 victory over the San Francisco 49ers Monday night.

Golf course superintendent

Poly's Stock has chief goal

By BILL LANGLEY
P-B Sports Editor

Tight end Dave Stock, Cal Poly's last-minute hero in two victories this season, has his future planned.

He intends to be a golf course superintendent.

His ambition someday is to be in charge of a course somewhere north of the Los Angeles area.

"I like the outdoors," Stock explains. "It has been my goal since I started working at a golf course when I was 16."

Poly's football staff can be thankful of Stock's professional ambitions.

The main reason Stock is attending classes in Pomona is because of the university's program in park administration and landscaping.

"It was either here or Cal Poly San Luis Obispo and this is a lot closer to home," added the San Diego native.

Poly hasn't used Stock too much this season as a prime receiver for quarterback Jim Zorn but timeliness has made up for quantity.

Stock caught the game-winning three-yard pass from Zorn with four seconds left in the game to give Poly the exciting 13-12 win over Fresno State in the season opener.

Because of a switch in Poly's offensive plans last week, Stock was more of a target in last week's 35-25 win over Cal State Fullerton.

Again, Stock was the receiver on the game-winning 20-yard pass from Zorn with four minutes left in the game. The TD gave the Broncs a big lift after Fullerton rallied from a 24-7 deficit to go ahead 25-24.

"Yes, those two passes have been the highlights of the season," Stock said. "The main thing I have learned this season is the ability to watch the defenders better."

Stock played tight end at San Diego's Mission Bay High and San Diego Mesa but sat out of school a year because of personal reasons before deciding on Poly before the 1973 season.

"I came to Poly because of its educational program and decided to play football," Stock said. "I was just a walk-on but was able to earn a scholarship through my performance in spring practice."

Stock is seeing more action this season and is currently alternating at the tight end spot with Ron Tatum as head coach Andy Vinci uses them to bring in the plays from the sidelines.

"I don't mind alternating," Stock said. "Competition helps you."

Thanks to catching six passes for 104 yards against Fullerton, Stock has now grabbed 11 for 153 yards for the season.

"We have known Dave has the talent," offensive coach Eric Widmark explained, "but it has been hard to give him the ball as much as we would like because of other receivers. It happened this week that we were able to use those plays to Dave successfully."

Poly's Andy Sanchez leads the national NCAA Division II receiving statistics with 50 receptions for 817 yards while Ernie Yarbrough has caught 33 for 546.

Of course, blocking is a key asset for tight ends.

"Both Stock and Tatum are super blockers," Widmark said.

"Our tackles on the offensive line have been good enough to enable me to do my job of blocking better," Stock said. "They set me up real well especially for the double-teaming assignments."

Stock is hoping to close his Cal Poly career on a strong note in the final two games against Northridge Saturday and at Cal State Hayward next week.

BRONCO BUSTERS — Saturday's game will start at 7:30 p.m. at Northridge's Devonshire Downs. It will be Poly's last chance to record a win in the California Collegiate Athletic Association (CCAA) this season . . .

Zorn's up-to-date season stats are 113 completions in 214 attempts for 1,621 yards and six touchdowns. He has also rushed for 432 yards and 10 TDs . . .

Poly lists a final season home attendance mark of 19,750, just 250 short of the announced 20,000 goal. The game against SLO was the top draw with 8,500 customers.

SPORTS NEWS IN BRIEF

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Ninth-ranked Auburn has been invited to play in the 30th annual Gator Bowl Dec. 30 and the Tigers have voted to accept the invitation, a Gator Bowl official said today.

George R. Olsen, executive vice president of the Gator Bowl Association, said he was awaiting word of the official acceptance from Auburn officials.

PHOENIX, Ariz. (UPI) — Oklahoma State Wednesday accepted an invitation to play the Western Athletic Conference champion in the fourth annual Fiesta Bowl Dec. 28 in Tempe, Ariz.

The Cowboys, 4-3 with four games left, were invited by Fiesta Bowl president Karl Eller, who called them "the best team available at the present time."

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — Maryland will play in the 16th annual Liberty Bowl football classic here Dec. 16, Liberty Bowl officials announced Wednesday night.

"We feel that Maryland is the strongest team in the nation with three defeats, and will certainly be a worthy opponent for any team we match them against," said A.F. 'Bud' Dudley, executive director of the Liberty Bowl Festival Association.

STARKVILLE, Miss. (UPI) — The Mississippi State Bulldogs will make their first postseason appearance in 11 years Dec. 28 in the Sun Bowl at El Paso, Tex., it was announced Wednesday night.

Athletic Director Charles N. Shira said Sun Bowl officials apparently had not picked State's opponent.

He said the Bulldogs, 6-2 going into Saturday's Southeastern Conference clash with 9th-ranked Auburn in Jackson, were approached by several bowls but the Sun was the only one to make a firm offer.

ATLANTA (UPI) — North Carolina State will be invited to the Peach Bowl and Vanderbilt can get a bid with a victory Saturday.

North Carolina State gets the invitation even if it loses to sixth-ranked Penn State, according to George Crumbley, executive director of the Peach Bowl.

HOUSTON (UPI) — The selection committee director for the Astro-Bluebonnet Bowl said Wednesday the University of Houston would likely be the host team in this year's game.

"It's a real strong possibility we will offer them the invitation to our bowl," said Weldom Humble. "That's the direction we will be looking for as a home team."

Houston, 6-2 for the season, has played in the home-town bowl three times, easily beating Tulane last year.

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — John McNamara was rehired as manager of the San Diego Padres for the 1975 season Wednesday, receiving a one-year contract, and will be joined by two new coaches, the team announced.

TOYAMA, JAPAN (UPI) — Jon Matlack scattered nine hits as he went the distance and Joe Torre doubled in two runs Thursday to pace the New York Mets to a 6-3 victory and their first win over the Yomiuri Giants after five losses and two ties.

The Mets beat the Japan All Stars 8-0 and 4-2 last Saturday and Sunday and their record now stands three wins, five losses and two ties in the 10 games they have played of their 18-game goodwill series.

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Monroe Brooks, California lightweight and junior welterweight champion, meets Mexico's Octavio Amparon in a scheduled 10-round non-title bout tonight at the Olympic Auditorium.

Brooks, of Los Angeles, is 191 with 16 knockouts.

Diamond Bar ready to host horse show

The Fourth International Medal Class Finals, a three-day horsemanship event involving an expected 100 entrants, is slated beginning Friday at the Country Equestrian Center in Diamond Bar.

The competition, for riders under 18 years of age, is divided into three divisions — Hunt Seat (hunter), Stock Seat (western), and Saddle Seat (English).

The event is the largest of its kind in the U.S. and the participants in the three divisions have qualified by winning in shows throughout the country. Entrants will be attending from as far away as Anchorage, Alaska.

Three elimination rounds for each division will be held each day, beginning Friday and running through Sunday.

Competition will begin at 10 a.m. Friday morning, with the finals to be held Sunday beginning at 10 a.m. The event is open to the public free of charge.

The Country Equestrian Center can be reached by taking the Pomona Freewway east to the Grand Ave. exit in Diamond Bar. Directional signs will be posted from that point to the center.

Penguins host Kings tonight

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The Los Angeles Kings try to extend their unbeaten string to seven contests tonight when they meet the Pittsburgh Penguins in an NHL match.

The Kings, in full command of first place in Division 3, are the only once-beaten team left in the league. They have not lost on the road in eight contests.

Pittsburgh is in fourth in the division.

Los Angeles, which beat St. Louis 4-3 Tuesday night, returns home Saturday night against the New York Rangers.

Owls face Palomar on final road trip

Zeroing in on its fifth title in eight years, Citrus College goes on the road for the last time in the regular season Saturday night and coach John Strycula would like to have some friendly faces awaiting his team when it arrives in Vista to play Palomar.

Strycula has been actively seeking fan support all season for the Owls' road games. A rooter's bus is being scheduled to make the trip.

"We'd like to have our fans attend the game to help us out down there," said Strycula.

The Mission Conference leaders (5-0) hope to maintain their lead over Saddleback (4-0-1) and Grossmont (4-0-1) with a win over the Comets (2-3).

The Owls return home to meet the two challengers in back-to-back games at Citrus Stadium in Azusa, Nov. 16 and 23.

The Owls are starting to receive notice in other areas. They are ranked 12th in the state this week, up from 13th on the weekly poll released by the JC Athletic Bureau.

Cross-valley rival Chaffey (1-4) will be on the road also Saturday, traveling to San Bernardino (2-3). The Panthers had a bye last week, while Citrus won its sixth game in a row, 10-0 over San Diego City. Palomar lost to Saddleback, 35-19 and Grossmont beat San Bernardino, 35-6.

Citrus running backs Roy Prather and Ed White, the No. 1 and No. 2 rushers in the conference, will try to maintain their 1,000-yard pace against Palomar.

Prather upped his total to 769 yards in seven games last week with 140 yards on 26 carries. White added 47 yards on seven carries to push his total for the season to 589 yards.

Prather, a freshman from Arcadia, needs 231 yards to reach 1,000 for the season. He is averaging 109 per game and 5.9 per carry. He has five touchdowns.

Chaffey picked up its first win of the season prior to last week's bye with a 31-21 decision over Southwestern.

"It was the first bye we've had in several years," said Panther coach Willie Richardson. "It's helped get over some injuries and illness.

Mustangs, Saints go for H.L. x-country title

It's showdown time Friday for the Hacienda League cross-country frontrunners.

Walnut and San Dimas Highs are in a deadlock for the top spot in league at this point, both with 5-0 records. The tie will be broken Friday at Mt. San Antonio College as the two squads meet at 3:15 p.m.

Both schools did well in the recent MSAC Invitational cross-country meet so they have had experience running on the Mountie's rugged hilly circuit.

Walnut bested Bonita and San Dimas downed Ontario to set up Friday's showdown.

The Mustangs' Scott Carter established a course record at Bonita High, recording a 9:59 over the two-mile course. Frank Diaz of the Saints also set a course mark at Ontario with a 10:04 clocking over a two-mile distance, so the top two runners on each team are just that close.

The number two and three men for the Mustangs are Tony Hanlon and Tom Whiston who have both recorded times right around the 10-minute mark for two-mile courses. The same is true of the Saints' second and third best runners, Kevin Kellogg and Ron Hargett.

Records fall to Benton

First 1,000-yard season?

By MIKE RAWLINSON
P-B Staff Writer

If you've been doing something for more than half your life you should be pretty good at it.

Robert "Binky" Benton has been working at the game of football for 10 of his 19 years. He started when he was nine in Pop Warner leagues.

The Mt. San Antonio College tailback has gotten very good at it.

Benton broke three rushing records last week in MSAC's first win of the season, 17-16, over South Coast Conference foe Cerritos.

The 5-foot-7, 175-pound Benton smashed conference records for number of rushing plays (31) with 43, net yards gained (191) with 210 and most yards gained rushing in a season (708) by pushing his total to 758 in seven games this year.

He is well on his way to a 1,000-yard season and if he makes it, he'll be the first player in the conference's six-year history to do it.

The South Coast has never been a Mickey Mouse alignment either. Though not as strong this year as it has been, the SCC has been considered one of the two toughest in the state. The Metropolitan Conference is the other with the likes of Bakersfield, El Camino and Pasadena.

Only a freshman, Benton prepped at Los Altos High in Hacienda Heights where he played on CIF champion teams that lost only one game in four years.

He rushed for more than 1,400 yards at Los Altos last season and was a first team All-CIF choice.

Benton made the transition to JC ball rather easily.

Benton has been contained only once by the opposition this season. Orange Coast held him to 53 yards two weeks ago. But he says Cerritos hit harder last week.

"Orange Coast hit good, but Cerritos hit harder. Against Orange Coast there was just no place to go. Their middle guard played like a middle linebacker. He'd hit and move to the ball, jamming things up."

A physical education major, Benton almost enrolled at Arizona State, where he expects to transfer after his eligibility is up at MSAC.

Listed at 5-7, 175, Benton looks shorter and heavier. The bulk is the result of off-season weight training which he began when he was 15.

Adding natural quickness to the strength and bulk the weight training has produced, Benton is a difficult target for opposing defenses.

"Pound for pound he's the best runner I've ever had," said MSAC coach Mal Eaton who has been coaching for more than 20 years.

Benton may meet his biggest challenge of the season this Saturday when the Mounties (1-4-2) entertain the SCC's leading defensive team against the rush, Santa Ana.

The Dons, struggling also with a 1-5 record, have nonetheless limited the opposition to only 2.5 yards per play on the ground.

Santa Ana, 0-2 in the conference standings, is in a "must" win situation if it is to contend for the title. The same goes for the 1-1 Mounties who have dreams of winning their last three games to finish 4-4-2 overall and 4-1 in the standings for a piece of the title.

Benton must gain at least 81 yards per game to reach the coveted 1,000-yard milestone.

Pomona girl in Karate finals

LOS ANGELES — Wendy Pickard, competing out of the U.S. Karate League in Pomona, qualified Sunday for the National Karate Championships on Nov. 16.

Wendy placed first in the women's division of the Southwest Regionals at Pierce College here. The third-degree brown belt was the only competitor from the Pomona league to advance from the regionals.

The top male competitor out of the local league was Dean Pickard, who placed fourth in the men's division. Dean is a second-degree black belt.

The event was sponsored by the All-America Karate Federation.

Claremont-Mudd booters nearing SCIAC crown

Claremont-Mudd scored a vital 4-1 win over visiting Whittier College Wednesday afternoon, thus moving the Stags closer to clinching the Southern California Intercollegiate Athletic Association soccer crown.

C-M took it to Whittier in the first half, building up a big 3-0 lead in the early going. David Goldstein scored three of the four Stag goals, while John Peitzlaff added the final Claremont score. Miguel Lopez booted home the lone Poet tally.

Stag goalie Rob Lamb, a freshman from Damien High, recorded a real soccer rarity on Pritzlaff's goal. Lamb was credited with an assist when his long punt out of the Stag goalie area carried all the way downfield and Pritzlaff put it in past the Poet goalie.

The big win gives the Stags a 9-0-1 SCIAC record, good for first place in the conference. With the loss Whittier dips to a 8-3-1 mark, while Pomona-Pitzer is 7-2-1.

The Stags can clinch the league title and a spot in the NAIA district playoffs with a win over Caltech Saturday at CMC. Claremont will then play Pomona on Tuesday to close out its regular season.

NAIA playoff action will get underway Nov. 14.

Warren Jabali signs with Q's

SAN DIEGO (UPI) — Veteran guard Warren Jabali, the ABA's rookie of the year in 1969, signed on Wednesday with the San Diego Conquistadors as a free agent.

Jabali, a six year ABA veteran, will join the club Saturday at Salt Lake City against the Utah Stars.

Also joining the Cues, now 3-6 for the season, will be another six-year ABA veteran, center Lee Davis, who played last season with Memphis.

The Cues also announced they have activated forward George Adams from the injured reserve list and have waived guards Greg Lee and Art Williams.

Hoople sticks his neck out again--predicts more upsets

By MAJ. AMOS B. HOOPLE
Peerless Prognosticator

MAJOR HOOPLE'S
FOOTBALL FORECAST

Holy smokes, sports fans, this is going to be quite a weekend on the local scene.

Yessirree, yours truly has some real hum-dingers for you.

Let's start off with the high schools — with the San Antonio League headlining the act — harumph!

It's going to be a real mess, no doubt about it.

Ganesha High will stun league-leading Claremont by a 24-20 margin, and Damien will slip past Garey 18-7 to give the SAL a three-way tie for the lead. It would have been a four-way deadlock, har-rumph, but Pomona's Devils will be red hot in eliminating Upland, 16-13.

Chino will escape the cellar with a 21-13 win over Montclair.

And how about that Hacienda League?

Well, it's not over yet. That's right, haff-kaff, Royal Oak will bump undefeated Bonita from the top to give the Romans a one-half game lead going into the final weekend of play, 20-7.

However, San Dimas' bid for a shot at the title and also a CIF bid will be snuffed when Walnut scrambles to a 21-12 win over the Saints.

Rowland will win at least a share of the Montview League title with its 23-10 win over Nogales.

That's a lot of excitement for the high schools, but don't stop reading yet because there's just as many for the local colleges.

The SCIAC will provide plenty of fireworks when La Verne upsets the Poets of Whittier, 18-13, and Pomona-Pitzer "bombs" its way to a 38-30 triumph over Claremont-Mudd.

Cal Poly will win easily against Northridge, 28-12, while Mt. San Antonio College and Citrus College post wins in junior college play.

Now for a look at the national scene:

The woods—heh-heh—are full of outstanding football contests this weekend. Enough, indeed, to satisfy even the zaniest football filberts For starters, how about these matchups; Alabana vs. LSU, Flordja vs. Georgia, Texas—Baylor, Ohio State vs. Michgan State Oklahoma—Missouri. Not bad, eh what?

And to the above you can add Southern California vs. Stanford, UCLA—Oregon, Texas A&M vs. SMU, Texas Tech against TCU, Miami of Ohio vs. Kent State, California against Washington, and Virginia meeting Virginia Military Institute for the 69th time. Jove, 't will be some weekend.

Here are the Hoople Computers predictions on these headliners. At Birmingham, the Alabama Crimson Tide will continue its relentless sweep toward another Southeastern crown as they turn back Charley McClendon's LSU Fighting Tigers 28-14. Also in the Southeastern, the Florida Gators will outfight the Georgia Bulldogs to take a narrow 24-21 victory — umkumph.

The Ohio State Buckeyes will have a tussle on their hands but figure to double the score on the revived Michigan State Spartans. We see Ohio State winning 34-17.

The Oklahoma-Missouri fray looks like a high-scoring affair with Joe Washington and his Sooner supporting cast finishing on the long end of a 42-21 count. Texas and Baylor will whack it out in Waco and when the thumping is over Texas will be ahead 34-24.

It's been a lean year for Stanford and the visiting Southern California Trojans don't figure to make it any easier for the Cardinals this Saturday. In the 52nd renewal of this great rivalry, the Trojans, with superlative Anthony Davis leading the way, will prevail 27-10 in this important Pac 8 meeting.

In a pair of Southwestern contests that will have bearing on the league title, Texas A&M will edge SMU, 22-14, and Texas Tech's Red Raiders will blast TCU, 26-7.

The fine Miami Redskin eleven will clinch the Mid-America title and a Tangerine Bowl spot with a 36-14 conquest of Kent State. This Miami club would hold its own against any team in the nation—har-rumph

California's Golden Bears, enjoying a fine season due to the strong arm of Steve Bartkowski, will rout Washington 26-7, at the same time UCLA's Bruins will whip invading Oregon, 17-10.

Claremont soccer clubs enjoying three victories

Three of the four Claremont Pacific Soccer League teams enjoyed victories last week.

The Division III Straw Hat Pizza Claremont Lancers edged the Torrance Fram Boys, 2-1. Phil Adams and Jim McNeal scored the Lancers' goals while Todd Hart anchored the defense.

The Division II Peterson's Pharmacy Claremont Kings and the Division IV Straw Hat Pizza Claremont Lancers recorded wins via the forfeit route.

In a high scoring Division III game, the Torrance Scandia Vikings defeated the Claremont Spittin' Image Knights, 6-3. The Knights rallied from an early 3-0 deficit to gain a 3-3 halftime tie but were unable to control the Vikings in the second half. Larry Ryan, Raye Calderon and Chris Jollymour scored for the Knights.

All four Claremont teams are traveling this Saturday. The Kings and Knights visit Culver City while the Lancers head for Torrance and the Stars play at Brea.

Sports Arena track is right on schedule

LOS ANGELES — Construction is more than 50 per cent completed on a new indoor track for the Los Angeles Sports Arena, General Manager Jim Hardy reports.

The track will be used for the first time for the 16th annual Sunkist Invitational indoor meet on Saturday, Jan. 18.

Officials expect the new facility, which is of wood construction, to be the fastest indoor track in the nation. It is designed by Floyd Highfill of Albuquerque, who also designed the San Diego Sports Arena facility, which has produced a succession of world indoor marks.

It is expected construction will be completed within a month, following which it will be tried out by some of the track stars who'll participate in the Sunkist meet.

Basketball signups to end

This is the final week for the Diamond Bar-Walnut YMCA Basketball Leagues. Girls in grades four through nine and boys in grades four through eight are eligible.

It is a low key program with emphasis on fun and fundamentals. All games will be played indoors on Saturdays at local gyms. The season begins December 7 and ends in mid February.

Call the YMCA in Diamond Bar for further information, 595-5015.

Pomona Gunners hold first place

By Adrian Mercado
P-B Correspondent

The Pomona Gunners of the Pomona American Youth Soccer Organization (AYSO) defeated the Panthers 4-1 to continue their lead in the First Division (age 13-15).

Joe Trejo led the scoring with two goals and Dale Clark as well as Mario Grajeda added to the score. Steve Short booted in the Panther goal.

The Aztecs remain in second place by dropping the Stars 5-2 after a 1-1 halftime deadlock. Roberto Cortez (2), Alberto Contreras, Bruce Scarcia, and Guillermo Vazquez tallied for the Aztecs while Ken Ramo and Greg Romo scored for the Stars.

The Pomona Police Assn. Rangers stayed a close third, only three points back by "out-Foxing" the Cobras 2-0; Mike and Jim Fox did their scoring in the First Half and goalie Doug Halloway registered his first shutout.

In Division II action, the Pomona 1st Federal Thunderbirds of the Red League maintained their perfect record by blanking the Road runners 3-0. Ricky Garcia's two goals was augmented by another tally from Brent Snead. Two teams remain tied for second place; the Pomona Service Center Torpedos and the Sergeant's Concrete Palominos.

The Torpedos sunk the Eastern Airlines Wings 4-2 on two first half goals by Trevor Jordan and two complementary half goals by Charles Hayes; Steven Mercado's two goals were not enough to gain a victory.

Meanwhile, the Palominos had an easy time against the Chargers in a 7-1 win. Danny Holloway's six goals plus Dashiel Andrew's solo goal overwhelmed their opponents; John Brazel scored for the Chargers to avoid the shutout.

After a scoreless first half, the Kings nipped the Tigers 2-1 on goals by Bernie Pina and Sam Stavros; Kelvin Arrington roared once for the Tigers.

The Blue League also remains close with only three points separating the top three contenders. The Pomona Police Assn. Renegades harnessed the Mustangs 4-1 after a 1-1 halftime score. Timothy Thompson (3) and Danny Quinn were the Renegades' sharpshooters while Kevin Davis did the scoring for the Mustangs.

Second place still belongs to the Southwest Concrete Products Jets who tamed the Wildcats 2-0 on net-hitters by David Wilber and Dennis Sanderson. The Pomona Valley Datsun Kestrels winged past the Marauders 3-2 on three solos by James O'Brien, Byron Melling, and Ronald Stearns; Darrin Braulik tallied for the Marauders. All the scoring was done in the second half as the Hawks beat the Pomona Optimist Sharks 2-1. Mike Jackman and Roy Botsford hit the net for the Hawks while Nick Hartshorn did likewise for the Sharks.

The Division III Pomona Police Assn. Eagles remain perched on top of the Red League by outmaneuvering the Bombers 2-1 on goals by Cliff Jackson and Mike Richards; Steve Blaine tallied for the Bombers. The White League's first place KSOM Kickers and the Steelers dueled to a scoreless tie. The Pomona Optimist Jackrabbits hopped over the Bond Trucking Co. Cheetahs 4-1 on goals by James Carey (3) and Aaron McClain while Mike Rafferty scored for the Cheetahs.

The Kiwis blanked the Streakers 4-0 on four goals by Clifford Scott. Shane Wilber's two goals proved to be the margin of victory for the Cougars as they defeated the Pumas 2-1 despite a goal by Derek Lerma. The Larry Wellin Jeweler's Ravens nipped the Dolphins 3-2 on tallies by Mike Muchmore, Gary Shefey, and Lamont Moore; Mike Garcia and John Bass shot goals for the Dolphins.

In the girl's Division III game, the Pomona Dandelions blanked the Claremont Doves 2-0 on two first half goals by Suzanne Lopez and Dawn Galbreath.

Trout season opens at two local parks

Much to the delight of local anglers, trout season opened at two San Bernardino County regional parks this week. Glen Helen Park in Devore, and Cucamonga-Guasti Park in Ontario have each been stocked with 1,000 pounds of Rainbow Trout, to ensure good fishing in the coming days.

Park spokesmen state there are several regulations visitors should keep in mind. Among these are that all fishermen over 16 must have a valid California fishing license, and must also purchase a trout permit. The one day permits cost $2 for adults, 16 and over, and $1 for juniors, 15 and under. The limit is five trout, plus five fish of any other species, per day. The normal park entrance fee of 50 cents per vehicle also applies.

To insure that trout remain plentiful until spring, the lakes will now be replanted every two to three weeks.

Park hours are from 7:30 a.m. until 5:30 p.m. For additional information please contact the park superintendents. Cucamonga-Guasti may be reached at (714) 988-1061, and Glen Helen at (714) 887-3480.

Boat Show sets opening

More than 700 craft will be on display in the first of the 1975 boat shows when the Southern California Marine Association presents its 19th annual Los Angeles Boat Show.

The event is scheduled Nov. 15-24 at the L.A. Convention Center. It is the nation's second largest all-marine exhibition.

Boats will range from luxurious long-range diesel-powered cruisers carrying a price well over six figures to tiny dinghies.

Trout plant

The following lakes and streams, listed by county, are scheduled for restocking this week with catchable-size rainbow trout from Department of Fish and Game hatcheries:

TULARE — Kern River (Johnsondale Bridge to Fairview Dam, Fairview Dam to KR3 Powerhouse).

KERN — Brite Valley Reservoir, Hart Park, Lake, Kern River (KR3 Powerhouse to Lake Isabella, Borell Powerhouse to Democrat Dam, Democrat Dam to KR1 Powerhouse), Kern River State Park.

LOS ANGELES — Big Rock Creek, El Dorado Lake, San Dimas Reservoir, San Gabriel River (East and West Forks).

RIVERSIDE — Cahuilla Lake, Evans Lake, Glen Helen Lake, Perris Lake.

SAN DIEGO—San Vicente.

VENTURA—Casitas Lake

SAN BERNARDINO — Colorado River, Mojave Narrows Lake

SANTA BARBARA—Cachuma Lake

All stocking is scheduled road and weather conditions permitting.

Reward tags placed on Owens River trout

More than 300 brown trout in the lower Owens River have been tagged with $5 reward tags to help the Department of Fish and Game determine if too many fish are being taken from one of the most popular wild trout streams in the state.

The tags were attached to the fish last month by fisheries biologists during a survey of the 16-mile section of the lower Owens River downstream from Pleasant Valley Dam in Inyo County.

The trout, ranging from 8 to 16 inches, were tagged by a team of fishery biologists from the DFG's Bishop office and the department's wild trout project in Sacramento. Special electrofishing gear was used to capture the trout which were returned to the stream immediately after being tagged.

This section of the Owens River is one of 17 waters in the state that have been designated "wild trout waters" by the Fish and Game Commission. These waters have been set aside by the commission to be managed for anglers who prefer to fish for wild trout rather than for hatchery-reared fish.

"This 16-mile section of the Owens River is one of the most heavily fished wild trout streams in the state," says John Deinstadt of Sacramento, head of the DFG's wild trout program.

Information gained from the return of the $5 reward tags will enable Deinstadt to determine the number of trout being caught by anglers and the rate at which they are being landed.

"If the catch rate is too high to maintain the high quality fishing intended for wild trolt streams, we will recommend that regulations be changed," Deinstadt said. Recommended changes could include reduced limits or special restrictions on the kind of fishing tackle used by the anglers, Deinstadt explained.

The Owens River below Crowley Lake remains open for fishing all year, except for an artificial trout spawning channel 0.8 mile downstream from Pleasant Valley dam which is closed year around to all fishing. All other lakes, streams and reservoirs in Inyo and Mono Counties, including tributaries to the Owens River, are closed from the last day of October until the last Saturday in April.

Sections of the Owens River surveyed by the biologists included an area immediately downstream from Pleasant Valley Dam where nearly all of the fish died in September as the result of low oxygen levels caused by an unusually large plankton bloom in Pleasant Valley Reservoir.

Last month' check showed that brown trout are re-establishing themselves in the section affected by the dieoff. To speed this re-establishment, weirs which normally are used to channel spawning brown trout into the artificial spawning channel are not being used this year, allowing the trout to repopulate this stretch of the river.

Waterfowl take dips

Waterfowl hunters at the Wister unit of the Imperial Wildlife Area adjacent to the Salton Sea averaged 2.8 birds on Saturday and 1.1 birds on Sunday as the Southern California waterfowl season went into its second week.

These figures showed a drop from the number of birds bagged on the first weekend of the season when the Saturday and Sunday averages were 4.3 and 1.9 birds.

Last Saturday 245 hunters downed 681 birds, including 652 ducks, 18 snow geese and 11 coots at Wister. On Sunday the take for 167 hunters included 160 ducks, 2 snow geese and 19 coots for a total of 181 birds.

Hunters at the Kern National Wildlife Refuge enjoyed good shooting on Sunday although the average of 2.9 birds was down from 4.3 last Sunday, the first shooting day of the season at the Kern refuge. Sunday's turnout of 207 hunters bagged 602 ducks and 26 coots for a total of 628 birds. No geese were taken on the Kern refuge Sunday.

Saturday's take at Wister included 281 pintails and 205 green-winged teal. The chief species on Sunday were green-winged teal, 47; pintails, 32; and ruddy ducks, 27.

At the Kern refuge Sunday's take included 297 green-winged teal, 155 pintails, 56 shovelers and 51 cinnamon teal.

As quail, chukar seasons begin

Rain dampens hunt

Although populations were up in many Southern California areas, weather conditions preceeding the opening of quail and chukar seasons last Saturday scattered the birds widely in most areas. As a result, hunters had to work hard for an average of one or two birds, and limits were generally restricted to the more experienced and dedicated hunters.

In the high desert country northeast of Victorville in San Bernardino County the Ord Mountains and Sidewinder Mountain produced a number of chukars, including a few limits.

One veteran hunter reported the birds were at lower elevations, close to limited water supplies. Rainfall and windy weather which followed the weekend throughout most of Southern California probably will cause the birds to return to their more usual habitats at high elevations.

Closer to the Los Angeles metropolitan area, quail hunters reported considerable success in the hills east of Highway 5 in the Saugus-Newhall area.

In the Providence Mountains-Mid Hills-New York Mountains region of eastern San Bernardino County chukar hunting was generally slow as hunters had to cover wide areas to find birds. Quail hunting followed a similar pattern, with only a few hunters getting more than one or two birds.

Riverside County hunters found both quail and chukar in Yucca Valley and Coachella Valley areas, but rain in advance of the opening caused the birds to be widely scattered.

Among the more productive areas for quail in Riverside County were lands near Hemet, Anza, Aguanga and Terwilliger.

Japanese vets searching for war holdouts

TOKYO (UPI) — Three World War II Japanese veterans have started a search of northern Thailand for Japanese stragglers possibly still hiding in the area despite the end of the war nearly three decades ago.

The team of veterans arrived last week and flew to the northern part of the country during the weekend.

Japanese sources said the men are trying to locate the stragglers for their families.

Three men were interviewed Monday by the team, but they all claimed to be Chinese.

The sources said the team has no recent information regarding any stragglers the area.

Much of their information is nearly 30 years old and includes one report that a Japanese Imperial Army battalion commander left 180 men in the region to keep a watch on Burma at the end of the war, in the same way Hiroo Onoda had orders to keep watch on allied troops in the Philippines.

Onoda was brought home to Japan last year after spending the years since the end of the war living in the jungles of the Philippines.

Wall Street Briefs

TAIPEI, Taiwan (UPI) — The Republic of China will have a foreign trade this year substantially exceeding its own gross national product, the ministry of economic affairs said Wednesday.

The two-way foreign trade is expected to reach nearly $14 billion (U.S.) while the GNP will be about $11.69 billion. Back in 1962, Taiwan's foreign trade amounted to only 32 per cent of its own GNP.

Wall Street Chatter

NEW YORK (UPI) — Harris, Upham & Co. says it feels the elections, which were of such benefit to the Democrats, will have "little short-term" bearing on the stock market although they will have long-term implications. It notes that historically the Democrats have been "the spending party" but adds that it doubts "rampant spending will come at a time when the (current) unusual inflation... is itself so rampant in trend."

Lionel D. Edie & Co. says it sees a "deepening" of the current recession, which will prove to have been the longest of the postwar perod. While it describes such a situation as "painful," it means that "America still somehow tolerates such pericds, that capitalism and freedom are still at work," the company adds.
